marihuana, the Mexi
in certain areas of w years due to extraordina

There was a time when marihuana, the Mexican narcotic or drug weed, thrived in certain areas of Alaska, but not so during the last few years due to extraordinary precautions and care taken by canneries. Not so long ago a garden of this drug weed was discovered growing within the municipal boundaries of a large Eastern city. Of such stuff are dreams made.

Indian hemp, best known here as marihuana, is not a native of American soil. Early cultivation here was of the small European variety which was grown in the New England colonies for fiber in making homespun. But—statistics startlingly show—this seizure, while imposing on paper, perhaps—was a mere drop in the huge bucket of marijuana dissemination. To root out the menace it would be necessary to include marijuana in the list of drugs forbidden by the Harrison act.

The outstanding reason why the latest and most savage thrust against marihuana may fail is easily explained. This is the facility with which the addict can provide himself with it locally.

SCIENCE BECOMES A POLICEMAN

Innovations in Fighting Crime Bared at Patrolmen's School

Just before "class" begins (upper right) the "students" relax and talk over the "lessons" for the day. More than 600 police from all over Indiana have registered for the school which closes today.

The arm of the law means protection to the innocent from criminals of all kinds. The aim of the Indiana Police School is to provide adequate, scientifically trained, expert policemen to combat law violators. Here is a regulation pistol carried by a city patrolman aimed through the cartridge belt which he wears. Together they symbolize law and order properly controlled and educated.

The vice is smoking marihuana.
The Persian bad man had his men smoke the weed because when they were under its influence they would do what he told them to do. They would kill and rob.
