PROFESSIONAL BIO

Allyson McElroy (Al-i-sen MAC-ul-roy) is a speaker, trainer and author with the John Maxwell Team, a group known throughout the world for its commitment to equipping leaders. With 20 years' experience from the front line to the manager's chair in the corporate world and from the back pew to servant leading in the non-profit/church world, Allyson has a unique perspective on the changes and challenges faced in both each day. With award-winning presentations filled with laughs, gasps, and "ah ha" moments, Allyson specializes in customer relationships, communication, team building and leadership training. No matter if it's an all day event, keynote address, or 1-hour lunch & learn, Allyson speaks life to release others on their journey to - passionately and purposefully - fulfill their greater purpose.

Other Points of Connection

- Allyson started working at People's Electric one week after high school graduation. Twenty years later she was a Vice President, training and leading teams, when she left to fulfill her calling of inspiring others to take their "on 3" leap toward life's purpose.
- Allyson is published on YouVersion and published her first book, "Say: Speaking God's Promises" in 2021. A group Bible study soon followed and can be found at www.on3ministries.com.
- Allyson has served on many boards including the Ada Regional United Way, Mercy Ada Foundation Board, and Ada Rotary Club.
- Allyson received a full-ride scholarship and graduated from East Central University in Ada, Oklahoma with a 4.0 honor's GPA.
- Allyson, her husband Michael, and their son Cole love to travel. From the Giant Redwood forest in California to the cenotes in Progreso, Mexico, they are determined to see the world - or at least the North American continent.
- Allyson is passionate about compassion. She fully believes that compassionate connection is the first step to leadership.
