

Dear Trailblazer.

I would not be here today if it were not for the love and compassion of those who chose to help me when no one else did. Friendship and kindness transform communities, and even the smallest act of generosity can create a lasting ripple effect. As women, we often fight silent battles behind closed doors, and in the depths of a survivor's healing journey, angels appear—not as miracles, but as people who choose to stand up for what is right.

For many survivors, expanding their circle of trust isn't an option and often exposes other risks. That's why programs like Dear Trailblazer exist. This initiative is dedicated to restoring dignity, hope, and economic independence to women who have survived domestic violence. By providing the tools, connections, and resources needed to reenter the workforce with confidence, Dear Trailblazer is not just about career development—it's about economic empowerment through a holistic approach to each person.

When a survivor regains financial independence, she also reclaims her freedom, security, and the ability to provide for her children. It starts with one act of kindness.

One opportunity. One person believing in another. Together, we are not just helping survivors rebuild—we are transforming communities.

Sincerely,

Alma Zamudio
