

Technology Project: Instructional Presentation Phase

Sonja Howell

Tranquil Parenting Self-Assessment

Issues and Trends in Learning Technologies

Technology Project: Instructional Presentation Phase

Link to Instructional Presentation

<https://www.wevideo.com/hub#media/ci/1573524154>

Explanation

The Separated Parenting Scale instructional presentation will be one of many videos used in the new online classroom. This video will be provided to instruct each person step-by-step on how the process of this specific self-evaluation works. These parents are court ordered to take the Tranquil Parenting course and have been predetermined to not have a working relationship with their child's other parent.

I will add this video to my current YouTube channel. Next, I will have the video embedded it into the new online classroom. This video will have a complimentary video on how to complete the self-evaluation survey once the survey is converted to a Google survey. I plan on using many videos to add consistency to the instruction. This also removed extra discussions that distract from the curriculum that take place during face-to-face instruction. Most parents want to complain or bash the other parent during class time. I have to repeatedly remind them to refer to the materials I have given them or remind them that a therapist may be able to help them.

Once the classroom is complete, I plan on creating a video to add to the program's website page as a tutorial on how to apply to the program and how-to login to the classroom.

Reflection

During this section I tried going back to my roots and using Adobe Premier which was a waste of time. I should have started with WeVideo which is what I have currently been using and exporting to YouTube. Premier seems to have lost its ease of use or I just want things to be easier. Although I have lights and a recorder for this type of production, I want a simpler technology process. I have new lights, better microphone and earphones ready to purchase now in my Amazon cart. Over 15 years with educational multimedia experience and I'm still critiquing myself and wishing for a more streamlined process.

References

Howell, S., (2019) Parenting styles in blended families. Michigan Parent. (22-23)