

Líath Murdiff is a visual artist and recent graduate from NCAD working and living in Dublin. Her work typically forms from found ephemeral objects and imagery and flows into themes of nostalgia with satire and whimsical ideations. Murdiff's recent series "Romanticise Ur Life" is about taking care and putting thought into the mundane day-to-day, capturing the present and not constantly thinking of the past and future. Murdiff continues on with these ideas of romanticism in the everyday thoughts and feelings transcribing them into visual shapes and flows. Her work aims to translate daily internal monologue and visualisations into optical, abstract arrangements.
