Ethics vs Morals, You Decide - Ron Byrd

1 HR Course #71322

In this course, we will explore the important distinction between ethics and morals, two concepts that are often used interchangeably but carry different meanings. While morals are personal principles shaped by upbringing, culture, and individual beliefs about right and wrong, ethics are the structured rules and standards that guide behavior within a professional or societal context. Understanding the difference is essential, especially in fields where decisions impact others, because it helps us recognize when we are guided by personal values versus when we are held accountable to established ethical codes.

Don't Press Your Luck - Nedra Clingan

1HR - Course 142213

Get ready for a fun and interactive learning experience with Nedra Clingan as she leads a dynamic CE class on Self-Funding — presented with a twist! This engaging session combines education with excitement, keeping everyone on their toes as they test their knowledge, learn key concepts, and “press their luck” for the top score.
