MILLENNIUM TECHNOLOGIES – PHOENIX COVID-19 SENIOR LEADERSHIP ADVISOR
BRIGADIER GENERAL VELMA “VON” RICHARDSON, U.S. ARMY (RET.) Most recently served as the Vice President of Department of Defense Information Technology (DoD IT) Programs at Lockheed Martin in Washington, D.C. In this role, she supported Washington-based DoD Chief Information Officers and other IT leaders in identifying priorities, increasing program visibility, taking new technology directions and recommending innovative IT solutions. Richardson managed executive branch customer relationships with the senior leaders in the U.S. Military, Defense Information Systems Agency and Office of the Secretary of Defense. In addition, she assisted Lockheed Martin business units with their customer relations and helped program managers overcome funding challenges to develop cost-effective and competitive proposals.

In her position, Richardson focused on corporate priority and key DoD IT programs including U.S. Army Corps of Engineers IT services, ITES-2S, ENCORE II, CR2, ITA, Global Military Mail, OPTARSS, CENTCOM (U.S. Central Command) and AFRICOM (U.S. Africa Command). A strong advocate for Warfighter information technology and systems, Richardson is following the DoD’s new Stability Operations role.

Richardson is a member of Lockheed Martin’s Joint and Army Customer Focus Teams and AFRICOM Integrated Product Team. In addition, she serves on the board of directors for The ROCKS, Inc., an organization dedicated to the professional development of the U.S. officer corps. Before joining Washington Operations, Richardson served as vice president and DoD customer relations executive at Lockheed Martin Information Technology.

Richardson attended the U.S. Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, from 1993 to 1994 where she received a Master of Arts in Human Resources Management from Pepperdine University.

MILLENNIUM TECHNOLOGIES – PHOENIX COVID-19 SENIOR ADVISOR AMBASSADOR SIG

ROGICH served as White House Senior Advisor to President George H.W. Bush from 1989 to 1992 and as a communications and campaign advisor to Presidents Reagan and Bush and presidential candidate Sen. John McCain. He was selected by President Bush to serve as the U.S. Ambassador to Iceland, his country of birth. He is currently the President of The Rogich Communications Group, an international communications and business advisory firm based in Las Vegas, NV. Rogich also founded Las Vegas based R&R Advertising, now R&R Partners, Nevada's largest advertising and marketing firm, and has been involved with Las Vegas marketing for over 30 years. His entertainment and business relationships have included Frank Sinatra, Donald Trump, Mike Tyson, Steve Wynn, Kirk Kerkorian, and Sheldon Adelson, Roger Ailes to name a few. From 1989-1992, he worked in the West Wing of the White House as Assistant to the President for activities and initiatives for President George H.W. Bush. In 1991, at the request of the President, Rogich accompanied former Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev on his nationwide tour of the U.S. His company has worked with clients around the world and has been involved with most of the major gaming companies in Las Vegas. Ex-heavyweight champ Mike Tyson hired Rogich to burnish his image after biting Evander Holyfield's ear in their infamous 1997 match. Rogich is a former Nevada Athletic Commission chairman and state boxing commissioner as well as the former CEO of World Series of Fighting (WSOF).

RUTH HARRIS, CMPE CHIEF TRANSFORMATION OFFICER Healthcare Business Executive

with over 20 years of experience in business development and the clinical support of physician groups and integrated networks. Started and was owner of a Medical Management company which specialized in the growth and development of private physician practices and groups. My company was acquired in 2010. Extensive experience in medical practice transformation which has led to the leadership of value-based programs including Accountable Care Organizations, MSSP, Risk Models, management of commercial payer incentive programs and CMS quality improvement models. Key skills include business creation, start-up and development, analysis and strategy, leadership and management, marketing, process workflows and improvement, quality improvement management and revenue cycle management.

Key successes include the development of models that build relationships between the healthcare provider and the community. These programs include the integration of behavioral healthcare, social services, and other ancillary medical platforms which help to close care gaps. The concentration on initiatives which offer services and care to the frail and underserved populations has been my business focus. Examples of this are development of early intervention services, such as nutrition education, housing, home care and transportation, all of which are key to improve the quality of life for patients and to sustain healthy communities.

The new and continually changing landscape of healthcare has allowed me to use my broad experience to help develop and manage new cultures which focus on building infrastructures for success. My involvement with current innovative programs has assisted to improve healthcare outcomes and educate the community to provide better care and support.

PAUL MORRELL COMMUNICATIONS STRATEGIES is a veteran communicator and manager with experience leading government, business, and non-profit organizations.

Before joining Touchdown Strategies, Morrell spent more than five years in leadership positions at various organizations within the “Koch Network,” where he helped build a world-class, full-service communications agency that supported philanthropic and issue-advocacy campaigns. He previously served as a consultant to PepsiCo where he advised PepsiCo’s head of global communications on communications and management issues and he developed communication strategies and plans in support of the BP business unit responsible for the company’s response to the Deepwater Horizon oil spill. In 2012, Morrell served as the deputy communications director for the 2012 Republican National Convention.

Morrell also spent more than 20 years in communications and management leadership positions supporting members of the U.S. House of Representatives, including the House majority leader and Republican Conference chairman. In the George W. Bush administration, Morrell served as NASA chief of staff, Department of Energy deputy chief of staff, and National Security Council director of communications planning.

Morrell holds a Bachelor of Science in journalism from the University of Maryland.
