FARM OF THE MONTH

For nearly 60 years, our family has farmed along the wild and unpredictable Yuba River—the inspiration behind the name Wild River. This untamed waterway surges from the Sierra Nevada into the Sacramento Valley, depositing nutrient-rich topsoil during its natural flood cycles. Instead of trying to control the river, our family embraced its rhythm, adapting our farming practices to work with the land's unique ecology. This harmony with nature forms the core of The Wild River Way and has helped our organically grown orchards and vineyards flourish, producing more than 30 fruit varieties known for outstanding flavor, nutrition, and consistency. As a third-generation, vertically integrated farm, we carefully steward each piece of fruit from bloom through harvest, packing, and shipping. Our holistic approach avoids synthetic chemicals and relies on natural systems—like the barn owls that live in our owl boxes and eliminate more than 40,000 rodents each year. These thriving ecosystems, combined with microbe-rich soils restored by every flood, allow us to grow nutrient-dense fruit with exceptional brix, dry matter, and taste. At Wild River, nature, people, and farming exist in balance, and we're proud to share the delicious results with families who value quality and grow the natural way.
