At 140 lbs, Jack is every bit the gentle giant... but also very much still a puppy

He has the energy and excitement of a 14-month-old, just in the body of a small horse. Because of that, he'll need a home that understands giant breeds and is ready to give him the structure, consistency, and outlets he needs to succeed.

He absolutely loves people and thrives on attention, but would likely do best as the only dog where he can be the focus and continue learning his manners.

This sweet boy has been through a couple of transitions already, through no fault of his own. What he needs now is a forever family that's ready to commit to him fully and give him the stability he's been missing.

Jack is big, loving, and full of personality. With the right guidance, he's going to grow into an incredibly devoted companion and a very special part of someone's home!
