We have a special little guy who's ready for his introduction.

Petrie has been quietly putting in the work over the past six months, and the progress he's made has been nothing short of incredible.

He came to us at a really tough point in his life, where his reaction to uncertainty was unpredictable. With time, patience, and the right support, he's shown us who he truly is. Underneath it all is a sensitive, loyal little guy who just wants to feel safe and loved.

Petrie thrives in a calm environment where he knows what to expect. Consistency and routine are key for him and help him feel secure in his surroundings. He'll do best with someone who can offer clear boundaries and understand that small struggles are part of the process. With strong, steady leadership, Petrie will continue to build his confidence at his own pace.

In return, you'll get the best of both worlds... an awesome little walking buddy and a dedicated couch companion who's happiest curled up beside you

He can be a bit vocal when left alone, so a condo setting likely isn't the best fit. What he really needs is a steady home that understands him and is ready to keep cheering him on.

If you've been looking for a companion to share your days with, Petrie is ready for his person!
