Meet Billy!

If you're looking for a dog who greets every day with enthusiasm, this sweet pup might just be your guy!

At around a year old, he's still very much in that fun, goofy stage of life. He loves to play, gets excited about just about everything, and is always eager to see what comes next. His foster says he's very loyal and loves being close to his people, though he's still learning that not everyone wants a 50+ pound cuddle buddy launching themselves into their lap.

Billy has been settling nicely into foster care and is doing well with kennel time during the day. He's also proving to be a smart young dog. He already knows sit and shake, and he's quickly figuring out that responding to his name earns him something even better... treats!

Speaking of treats, Billy is very food motivated, which makes training a lot of fun. He enjoys learning and is the kind of dog who will continue to thrive with someone willing to put a little time into helping him mature into the amazing adult dog he's already showing signs of becoming.

Billy would do best with an active family or a playful canine companion who can help him burn off some of that young-dog energy. Once the adventures are over, he's more than happy to settle in for some affection and quality time with his people.
