Rooted in community. Dedicated to excellence. Training tomorrow's doctors.

For more than 70 years, Maury Regional Health has stood as a trusted not-for-profit health partner — caring for our friends, families and neighbors across the region. What began as a small community hospital has grown into a comprehensive regional health system, driven by one constant: a deep-rooted commitment to the people we serve.

As our community grows, we're growing with it: expanding our facilities to meet rising health care needs and investing in new ways to care for those who call this region home. That's why we partnered with the University of Tennessee Health Science Center to launch our first internal medicine residency program to train the next generation of physicians who will learn here, grow here and continue to bring clinical excellence and compassionate care to southern Middle Tennessee.

Today, our purpose remains the same:

To serve this community. To strengthen it.
To build a future where no one has to leave home to find exceptional care.

ON THE COVER: "I've lived my life on W. 7th St., working, walking, riding my bike, jogging, with stroller and without, and my fair share of Christmas and Mule Day parades. I've seen it at its best and its construction worst. I'm not sure I ever saw the street shine so beautiful as it did on that early October morning. I'm glad I stopped. Took a look, embraced the moment, and snagged this photo as a memory of its majestic appearance. What a beautiful place, what a beautiful world." - Chaz Molder

NEW DUCK RIVER PADDLE CRAFT ACCESS POINTS

The City of Columbia officially celebrated the opening of two new paddle craft access points along the Duck River with a ribbon-cutting ceremony at Riverwalk Park on Wednesday, October 1, 2025.

The project, funded through a $200,000 State Tourism Enhancement Grant with matching contributions from the State of Tennessee and the City of Columbia, was designed to expand outdoor recreation opportunities and create easier access to one of the community's most treasured natural assets.

Outdoor recreation is essential to building a healthy, connected community," said Parks and Recreation Director Mack Reagan. "These new access points give our residents and visitors more opportunities to enjoy the Duck River, stay active, and experience the natural beauty that makes Columbia special.

The new facilities include two designated paddle craft launches, one located near the Columbia Dam and another under the 5th Street Bridge inside Riverwalk Park. Together, the access points form a convenient thirty-minute float route, offering a family-friendly way to experience the Duck River without committing to a full-day trip.

Mayor Chaz Molder highlighted the importance of the river to Columbia's identity. "The Duck River is one of the most biodiverse rivers in North America, and it's right here in Columbia's backyard," said Molder. "These access points give us a new way to connect with the river and showcase the importance of preserving and celebrating this incredible re-source. I am proud of the vision that brought this project to life, the latest example in our efforts to make Columbia the best place in America to live, work, and raise a family."

Columbia City Manager Tony Massey emphasized the importance of long-term planning. "The Duck River has always been one of our greatest natural treasures, This paddle craft launch is a great way for our citizens to enjoy that treasure."

The ribbon-cutting ceremony drew community members, local officials, and representatives from the State of Tennessee to Riverwalk Park, where brief remarks were followed by the ceremonial ribbon-cutting and a demonstration of the new launches.

Columbia Parks and Recreation Director Mack Reagan highlighted the value for residents and tourists alike. "Outdoor recreation is essential to building a healthy, connected community," said Parks and Recreation Director Mack Reagan. "These new access points give our residents and visitors more opportunities to enjoy the Duck River, stay active, and experience the natural beauty that makes Columbia special."

The City of Columbia continues to prioritize investments in parks, recreation, and natural resources as part of its broader vision to make Columbia one of the most livable and family-friendly communities in the state.

Lee & Kristey Ray, BREEZY PowerWash INC., owners. photography provided

BREEZY 'IT'S THAT EASY'

JASON ZASKY

"Most pressure washing companies are a man and a truck with a helper; we are a large and fast-growing business with all the extras," begins Kristey Ray, who co-owns BREEZY PowerWash Inc. with her husband Lee, the latter a longtime Nashville firefighter. The Spring Hill couple have been growing the business for the past eight years—using Lee's nickname at the fire department, Breezy, for the name of the company.

"We thought it (the name) was catchy, and both the logo and the name have been great advertising for us. Our van wraps are pretty recognizable and unforgettable," continues Ray, before emphasizing that BREEZY does more than just power washing.

"We do all things exterior cleaning," she says, serving a mix of residential, commercial and multi-unit customers. That said, BREEZY handles everything from window cleaning to deck, fence & sidewalk cleaning, plus rust removal and oil, grease & graffiti removal. BREEZY also does a lot of tangentially-related work; that includes sealing driveways, cleaning out dryer vents, and installing gutter guards.

In the eight years the company has been in business they have attracted more than their share of big-name clients in both Tennessee and Georgia. That includes the University of Georgia and Nissan Stadium.

"We clean the entire stadium from top to bottom every year, including all the seats, all the cushions and all the concrete under the seats, plus the concrete in the concourses and the concrete ramps (that lead) in and out of the facility," notes Ray, who says it takes approximately 25 days to clean all of Nissan Stadium.

"But we're in and out of there all year long," she adds, because after, say, Monster Jam or AMA Supercross, "we have to go in there and clean. All that dirt has to get removed as it gets all over the ramps and lower-level seats."

Yet the company is just as well suited for small-scale residential jobs.

"We'll clean anything no matter how big or small," emphasizes Ray, noting that BREEZY has cleaned everything from tree houses to horse trailers to RV's, not to mention mobile homes and log cabins.

BREEZY PowerWash INC. can handle all jobs, big or small. photography provided

In terms of the benefits of power washing, Ray cites improved appearance, increased curb appeal, increased property value, and the extension of the life of exterior surfaces among the top benefits.

"The first thing everyone thinks about is aesthetics. It makes everything look pretty," says Ray, and that's why most people do it. But power washing also extends the life of your building materials. Also, you don't want to live with mold and dirt."

As for some of the ways that BREEZY differentiates itself from competitors, Ray highlights the fact that the company has a contractor's license and holds seven different industry certifications.

"Also, all of our techs are background checked and OSHA and EPA certified every two years. And we have a large fleet that allows us to have significant scheduling flexibility," she says.

That said, the company has been so successful that some of its clients are itching to start franchises.

"We have clients who have been so impressed with the way our business runs—everything from the customer service to the ease of scheduling—that they want to buy into the business or start a franchise. Right now we're working with our attorney to finalize our franchise disclosure document. We already have five people who want to start a franchise," offers Ray.

Meanwhile, Kristey and her husband plan to continue to focus on growing the business while continuing to give back to Spring Hill, which they have called home since 2010.

"We sponsor local sports teams, we've been a sponsor for Experience Spring Hill, and we also donate cleaning services," offers Ray. "We've cleaned the softball facility—the walls, the dugouts, the sidewalks—at Summit High School. We've also cleaned the football stadium at Summit High. And in the past we've cleaned The Well," she adds, referring to the organization that provides food for the hungry in Spring Hill.

At this point it's hard for Ray—a Kentucky native—to conceive living anywhere else.

"I love this community," concludes Ray, who has been a member of the Spring Hill Chamber of Commerce since 2011. "I love living and working in a community where we can give back."

THURGOOD MARSHALL STATUE UNVEILED

On Friday, October 3rd, the Columbia Peace & Justice Initiative and the City of Columbia hosted the unveiling of the Thurgood Marshall statue at the new roundabout on E 8th Street & S Main Street in downtown Columbia.

The event honored Thurgood Marshall, the first African American U.S. Supreme Court Justice, recognizing his contributions to civil rights and his legal work in Columbia following the Columbia Race Riot of 1946.

CPWS, MOUNT PLEASANT EXTEND WATER AGREEMENT FOR TWO YEARS

Columbia Power & Water Systems (CPWS), by unanimous vote of the Board of Public Utilities, has extended their partnership with Mount Pleasant Water for an additional 24 months.

The current agreement was signed in 2023 and allows CPWS to provide 100,000 gallons of water per day, and more as capacity allows, to their counterparts in Mount Pleasant, ensuring water service is not disrupted for those customers.

This agreement will last through October 1, 2027.

"Being good regional partners in our community is something we have been striving to accomplish, and this only continues to prove that we are putting our words into action," CPWS CEO Jonathan Hardin said.
