Training the Next Generation of Doctors

PROUDLY ENTERING A NEW ERA AS AN ACADEMIC MEDICAL CENTER

For more than 70 years, Maury Regional Health has stood as a trusted, not-for-profit health partner — caring for our friends, families and neighbors. What began as a small community hospital has grown into a comprehensive regional health system driven by a deep-rooted commitment to the people we serve.

Now, we've taken our next historic step by evolving into an academic medical center. In partnership with University of Tennessee Health Sciences, we have launched an Internal Medicine Residency Program to bridge advanced medical training with our legacy of clinical excellence.

It is a great privilege to mentor these medical leaders of tomorrow who will learn here, grow here and ensure that world-class care always remains close to home.

Hampshire resident Mike Patrick has been restoring soda machines for 40 years. Photography by Michael Tedesco

A Blast from the Past

PAM WINDSOR

Mike Patrick spends most of his days drifting back in time.

Whether it's as far back as the 1930s, 1940s, or several decades later, all depends on which project he's working on at the moment. Patrick restores old Coca-Cola machines.

"We've been doing this since the mid-80s," he says, referring to the Maury County business he and his wife, Julie, own and operate, Patrick's Collectibles. "The soda machines we work on range from the 1930s up to the 1980s."

The decision to start a business restoring old Coke machines sort of "just happened" after Julie decided she wanted one in her kitchen.

"She'd done the kitchen where we used to live in Coca-Cola wallpaper and what-nots to sit around and wanted an old Coca-Cola machine to put in there. I fought it at first and said I don't want one of those things in the house. But I lost, so I went and got her one and restored it. And when I was finished, I said, 'I'm going to get me one now.' And I haven't stopped since."

The skills he'd gained through years of collision repair transferred easily to figuring out how to restore the machines. Once he saw he had a knack for doing it, he turned it into a way to make a living.

Working together to provide the best in Direct Primary Care

Coca-Cola memorabilia is popular all over the world and for serious collectors, a vintage machine dispensing the famous drink is often among the most sought-after items. The machines are also popular as a stand-alone for people who want them in man-caves, near the pool, or inside bars.

Patrick points out that people love to check out the one he and Julie currently have in their kitchen.

“When people come over, the first thing they do is go in the kitchen and grab a Coke, water, Gatorade, or whatever. You can put plastic bottles in there or buy the glass bottles depending on what kind of drink you prefer.”

As with most collectibles, vintage machines can be expensive to purchase, revive, and restore. Patrick says there are many parts and a lot of labor that goes into bringing them to life.

“There are a lot of people all over the United States that do this, the only difference with my business is I’m hands-on. I do everything. It takes between probably 100 to 140 hours to restore one, if you want it done right. I tear them down, disassemble the machines, and bring them all the way back up. I put in new cooling units, everything, and they’re like brand new when you get them back.”

He says he does complete restorations, can simply get them working, or do whatever else the customer wants or needs. And the demand for the service is high; he stays extremely busy.

Photography by Michael Tedesco

It's not just Coke machines; he does other brands, too.

"We've done Pepsi, Nesbitt, RC Cola, and others, but 95 percent of the people don't want anything but Coca-Cola. It's got to have Coca-Cola on it, or they don't want anything to do with it."

He also often sells some of the machines he restores. He advises anyone who goes out looking for a vintage machine – to be wary. He learned that lesson the hard way.

"When I first got into it, I was buying a machine here and a machine there and of course people weren't honest, and I'd buy a piece of junk, try to fix it, and it wouldn't work. I've had people bring me machines they bought at auctions and wanted restored, and once I got into them, discovered the machines were so bad I couldn't restore them."

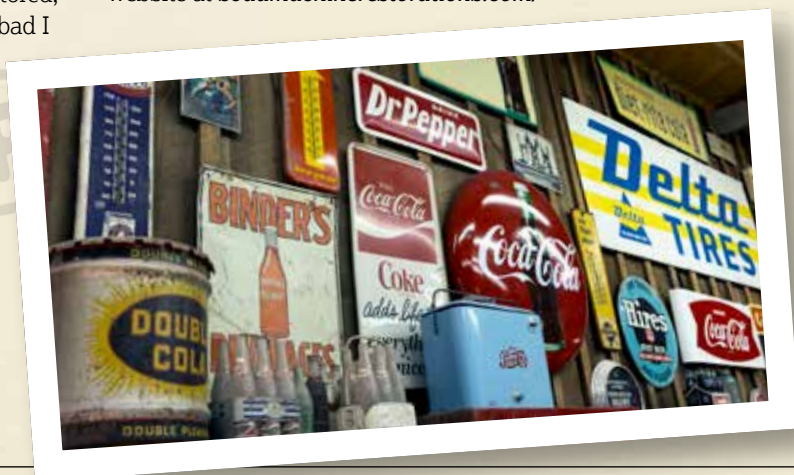

He tells people if they're buying one, approach it like buying a refrigerator.

"You have to look at one for rust, and if it's not turning on and off and not cycling, I wouldn't buy it."

Even after four decades of restoring those old machines, Patrick can't imagine doing anything else.

"It's like going back to old times, I guess. I like the 50s and 60s machines the best. In fact, if you look at our patio right now, it's all decorated with old soda machines. I don't think I'll ever quit."

DIRECT PRIMARY CARE

JASON ZASKY

Opening Simply Better Medicine has been a life changing decision for me, my staff, our patients—everybody,” says Dr. Meghan Sills, about her decision to start her own Direct Primary Care (DPC) practice in June 2023.

Readers who aren’t familiar with the DPC model should know that it’s an innovative approach to delivering primary care, in which the practice charges a monthly, quarterly, or annual fee that covers most services. In the case of Simply Better Medicine, adult members (21 and older) pay $125 per month after an initial prospective member fee of $125. Similarly, children are charged $60 per month (with an adult member), or $125 a month if they are without an adult member.

What patients receive is more personalized, accessible—and frequently more affordable—medical care. For one, patients can communicate directly with Dr. Sills and her team. And appointments proceed at a more relaxed pace.

“Each patient in the office has a 45-minute appointment and each telemedicine appointment is 20 minutes,” says Dr. Sills, before noting that patients have her direct email, so they can communicate with her directly. More notably, still, each visit is only $25.

“It’s $25 no matter what the visit is for,” adds Dr. Sills, “whether it’s a full physical or a telemedicine visit or a strep throat test.”

Simply Better Medicine also has a contract with Labcorp that can be very advantageous when it comes to lab tests.

“Probably 90 percent of my patients have some sort of insurance. But if patients have high-deductible insurance they will take advantage of our contract with Labcorp, as most of our labs are about four dollars per test,” she says. “And while we don’t take insurance, it can still be used for medication, imaging and referrals.”

Most importantly, perhaps, Dr. Sills and her staff—including nurse practitioner Natalie Quintero and certified nursing assistant Mckynlie Cooke—have the opportunity to get to know each of their patients as individuals.

“We all know who you are and what you are supposed to be doing,” says Dr. Sills, “including whether it’s time for a mammogram or a colonoscopy. We know everything about you and get to celebrate things with you but also help you in time of need. It’s just a different relationship,” she concludes, a far cry of what she experienced when she first started practicing medicine in 2009, and soon had 4,000 patients calling her their doctor.

“It was a lot,” she says, noting that after a full day of seeing patients she was up from 9 pm to 1 am charting, even while she had two young children.

Today those once-young children are young adults, and are frequently helping out at Simply Better Medicine alongside their father, J.B. Sills, who serves as Vice President and Chief Operations Officer for the practice.

“On any given day, you might see Will, our oldest, working the front desk. Or Blakeley, if she is home from college, she likes to call patients to get updates on how they are feeling. All three of my boys wash and fold the work laundry and all of them have taken turns sweeping the floor. They take pride in it,” says Dr. Sills, proudly.

“It’s our family business, and we all chip in to do what we need to do. And my kids understand that if we’re on vacation and a patient needs me, it’s what we do. We just take care of it because it’s important, and they understand because they have grown up around it,” she says.

That said, it’s perhaps no surprise that many of the practice’s patients treat Dr. Sills and her team like family.

“When J.B. and I got married our patients had an engagement party. And when I got COVID, my patients brought food to my house. They cared for me like I care for them,” she says.

As for the future of the practice, Dr. Sills says she expects it to continue growing, thanks to the anticipated addition of new personnel.

“The whole point is to keep our patient count small. I don’t want 800 patients, because that won’t allow me and my team to provide the care we want to provide. But Spring Hill is growing and we have a huge need for primary care. We will continue to help provide that for our community.”

Invisible Apple Cake From the Kitchen of Karen Bryant

For this recipe you will need an adjustable mandoline and an 8 1/2 by 4 1/2 metal loaf pan with sides that are at least 2 3/4 inches tall.

INGREDIENTS:

COOKING SPRAY

2 1/2 LBS. GRANNY SMITH APPLES, PEELED

1 CUP ALL-PURPOSE FLOUR

2/3 CUP GRANULATED SUGAR

1 TSP BAKING POWDER

1/4 TSP SALT

3 LARGE EGGS

2 TBSP BUTTER, MELTED

1/2 CUP WHOLE MILK

2 TSP VANILLA BEAN PASTE

DIRECTIONS:

- Preheat the oven to 350°F. Lightly spray an 8 1/2 by 4 1/2-inch loaf pan with cooking spray and line with a 8 by 13 inch sheet of parchment paper so that parchment hangs over long sides of pan.
- In a medium bowl, whisk together the flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt.
- In a large bowl, whisk the eggs until light and foamy. Add the melted butter, milk, and vanilla bean paste, and whisk until fully combined.
- Stir the dry ingredients into the wet mixture until just incorporated.
- Using a mandoline set to 1/10 inch or 2 1/2 mm, carefully slice the peeled whole apples until you reach core. Reserve 18 well-shaped slices from apples for the top (these will not go into the batter). Turn apple 90 degrees and slice until you reach core, continue on remaining sides; discard core. Repeat with remaining apples. Add remaining slices to batter and fold gently with a spatula to coat. Set aside for 15 minutes. After 15 minutes the batter will be thinner.
- Meanwhile, adjust oven racks to middle and lower-middle positions. Line rimmed baking sheet with aluminum foil of parchment paper, place on lower rack to catch drips and heat oven to 350 degrees.

- Stir apple mixture, breaking up clumps of slices if needed until all apple surfaces are lightly coated.
- Using a large, slotted spoon, lift about 1/4 cup of apples, letting excess batter drain back into bowl. Transfer apples to prepared loaf pan, keeping most apple slices flat (it's okay if some fold) and leveling with back of spoon. Continue until all apples have been transferred to pan and some batter remains in bowl.
- Dip one side of reserved slices in remaining batter and shingle, batter side down, in 6 rows of 3 slices on top. Press firmly on apples with back of spoon to level. Spread any remaining batter on top and smooth with back of spoon. Bake on upper rack until top is well browned and apples can be easily pierced with a knife, 1 1/2 or 1 3/4 hours, rotating pan halfway through baking. Transfer to a wire rack.
- Run knife along each short side of cake. Brush top with 2 tsp melted apple jelly (you can also use honey or maple syrup). Let cool for 1 1/2 hours (cake will deflate). Using parchment as sling, carefully lift cake out of pan and place on rack. Let cool completely, at least 2 hours.
- Top with cinnamon whipped cream, powdered sugar, caramel sauce, or whatever you like.
