

A New Voice for Washington: Dr. Raul Garcia for U.S. Senate

Dr. Garcia sat down with a reporter during a campaign trip to the San Juan islands. I believe that the reporter was a bit surprised to find Garcia to be so likable, earnest, and on point. He probably earned his vote.

In a political landscape often defined by party lines, Dr. Raul Garcia stands out as a candidate whose positions are shaped by experience, empathy, and a deep commitment to the people he seeks to serve. As an immigrant who fled Cuba for a better life, Dr.

Garcia's journey is nothing short of inspiring. He didn't just achieve the American Dream—he lived it, becoming a respected ER doctor, a national leader in medicine, and now a candidate for U.S. Senate.

What makes Dr. Garcia unique is his ability to approach issues with a fresh “scientific” perspective, unbound by partisan loyalties. Whether it's healthcare, immigration, or economic policy, his views are informed by his diverse experiences rather than a strict adherence to party ideology. This makes him a candidate who truly represents the diverse interests of Washingtonians.

Despite never holding public office, Dr. Garcia's leadership skills and genuine concern for people are quite apparent, making a compelling case for why he should be sent to Washington, D.C. to represent us.

I believe that once you watch this interview, you'll be as convinced as I am that Dr. Raul Garcia is exactly the kind of leader we need in the U.S. Senate. I sent this video to friends on both sides of the aisle, and every last person, felt he was earnest, agreed with not only his positions, but his solutions. He is a man of integrity, vision, and, above all, a commitment to doing what is right for all of us. Take a moment to watch and consider supporting Dr. Garcia in his journey to bring real change to Washington.

If there were ever a candidate who exemplified moderation, Dr. Raul Garcia would be it!
