

Ashley Brockmann
ashley@academiceye.net

EDUCATION PROGRESS INITIATIVE

Progressing education by making student learning clearer, more meaningful, and more actionable for everyone it serves.

Mission

The Education Progress Initiative exists to advance meaningful change in education by applying research, strengthening the role of families, and uniting schools, universities, researchers, communities, and organizations around a shared understanding of student learning. We build the collaboration, resources, and systems needed to help every learner make meaningful academic progress.

Vision

A future where every family understands their child's learning, every educator is supported by clear and useful information, and schools, researchers, universities, communities, and organizations work together to create meaningful educational progress for every learner.

Purpose

Education is filled with valuable research, expertise, programs, and resources, but they often exist in disconnected systems that are difficult for families and educators to navigate.

The Education Progress Initiative serves as a bridge between research and practice, bringing schools, families, universities, communities, and organizations together to develop shared solutions, expand access to effective support, and create meaningful, lasting improvement across education.

OUR COMMITMENT

The Education Progress Initiative believes meaningful educational progress requires collective action. We are committed to bringing together research, expertise, technology, resources, and lived experience to strengthen family engagement, connect effective solutions, and build an education system centered on clear understanding and measurable student progress.

Learn More and Show
Your Support!

www.academiceye.net