The Institute for Border Crit Theory: Social Justice Education and Research is seeking submissions on the topic of resistance. We are particularly interested in submissions from local community organizers, fighters, teachers, youth, women, LGBTQ, and indigenous communities. We encourage counter-narratives, testimonios, and oral and written stories that highlight issues of concern to communities of color living in the borderlands.

- Academic papers, poetry, art, video, photography and audio formats are welcomed.
- Selected Narratives and submissions will be published in our journal and featured on our website. Selected authors and artists will receive a one year subscription to our journal.
- From those selected, exactly one will receive a $500 stipend, plus a $500 donation to a community organization of their choice.
