Seven Point Personality Chart

I am so excited to present you with this Seven Point Numerology chart. This chart is divided into seven sections that will detail your physical journey in this lifetime, and two karmic numbers that will tell you any karmic debt you may have carried over from previous lives, and karmic lessons for this lifetime. If this all sounds complicated so far, don't worry I will explain each part and how it all weaves together to create your unique and sacred story in this numerology chart that you are certain to reference for many years to follow.

Client Name:

Birthdate:

Current Name:

Key Words: Manifest, Governed by the Law of Attraction, Abundant, Leadership, Personal Power, Truth Seeker, Independent, Care Giver, Compassionate, Counselor, Adventure, Travel, Healer, Empath, Dedicated, Focused, Self-sufficient,

Key words are the basic themes and energies of your chart.

Life Path Number (LPN) 8 – The Leader

Your life path number gives insight to the path you came here to walk in this life, in other words your direction and purpose.

The number eight is an amazing energy to have as your LPN because it is governed and strongly influenced by the powerful Law of Attraction. What this means for you is that you were born into this life naturally gifted with the ability to manifest, especially abundance. On the flip side, what this also means is that you must be mindful of your thoughts because just as you have the ability to attract and align with your desires, if you allow your thoughts to be negative this will be reflected in every area of your life. This is especially true when dealing with money. It is very important that you deal head on with any money blocks you may have or any that show up for you later in life.

There is an energy of leadership and personal power in the number eight, but you have so many other numbers in your chart that indicate a highly sensitive and giving person so you may actually find yourself on the opposite spectrum of things, and feel like your personal power is either taken from you or given away in the energy of compassion.

It is important for you to regularly take the time to fill your own cup and maintain a positive mindset through your physical experiences. Chances are intuitively you are already aware of your natural ability to work with the Law of Attraction to create your own experiences, but once you are able to fully step into your power having a LPN 8 makes you absolutely unstoppable when it comes to co-creating your dream life full of abundance and joy beyond your wildest dreams.

Your DN tells me that you are the spiritual truth seeker and as I mentioned you have other numbers in your chart that will be discussed as I go along that also indicate a strong desire to serve and care for others. These other energies in your chart mixed with the powerful number 8 as your LPN tell me that you are likely currently involved in leadership programs that serve others or that it is something you are drawn to doing in the future. You have the potential to not only create a beautiful and abundant life for yourself, but to make real change in the world and in your community through your dedication to helping others and your strong leadership skills.

Destiny Number (DN) 7 -The Seeker of Deep Truths

Your destiny number sheds light on what you are destined to do in this life.

Having a DN7 tells me that you are, as the name suggests a seeker of truths in this life. Your destined curiosity has probably led you to the gathering of different types of knowledge in many different areas as you are naturally drawn to deep exploration. It is likely that you thoroughly enjoy a deep dive into complex subjects like psychology, spirituality, different cultures, and many people with this number will be drawn to things like IT work, but with the other humanitarian numbers in your chart I feel like your calling is probably on a deeper spiritual level.

This number also indicates that you are intuitive by nature and again affirms that you are most likely aware of your natural born talent to manifest.

It also tells me that taking time to be alone to contemplate, ground, and center yourself is an absolute must for you. It's probable that you are already aware of this and have a deep understanding of your need for this personal time to reflect and connect. If not, just know that taking time daily even if it's just for a few moments of mindfulness is key to maintaining a positive mindset for you. It is very likely that you prefer to take these moments outside, as you feel especially drawn to the wonders of Mother Nature.

With the combination of the other energies in your chart you are probably drawn to a career path that serves other in some way such as a counselor, teacher, or maybe even involved in health and fitness. One thing is for sure, whatever it is you are drawn to with the number 8 as your LPN you are most likely the one running the show, or it is your desire to one day be the one running the show.

Soul Urge Number (SUN) 1 – The Independent One

Your soul urge number will reveal what it is your soul most desires in this lifetime to feel fulfilled in your purpose.

The number 1 shows up twice for you in your chart, this means that the energy of 1 plays a major role in your experience during this physical life. Having 1 in this position of your chart tells me that your soul craves independence and adventure. You have no desire to blend in, but instead you take pride in thinking for yourself and walking your own path fearlessly. This is a great energy to pair with the leadership of LPN8, and this also means that you probably aren't one to put up with much BS from those around you. You may even struggle at times with being a bit too controlling or bossy, it's all with good intent of course as it is your desire to ultimately serve, but as they say it's easier to catch bees with honey than with vinegar.

When you can take the time that you need to find your centering you can maneuver within the powerful energies of 8 and 1 in perfect balance and harmony.

Having such an independent number show up in your chart in combination with DN7 also indicates that it is very likely you immensely enjoy traveling and learning about new and beautiful places around the world.

It is probably difficult for you when you must work under anyone and taking direction from others can prove to be challenging. You have the confidence and security in your own abilities, and you aren't one for following the advice of someone else, especially if you do not agree.

You are most suited either being self-employed or in a management position and will do very well in both situations.

All the numbers in your chart tell me that you are on a path of self-discovery in this life and you are able to see the magic in the layers of the Universe that is often missed by the average person. I get the feeling that because you are so tuned in so much of the time synchronicities are common occurrences for you and you also understand they are powerful and guiding messages from the Universe.

Personality Number (PN6) The Caregiver

The personality number reflects how you are viewed by others and is also known as the Outside Number, meaning the outer you as opposed to your inner you.

You also have the number 6 show up twice in your chart so this tells me that the energy of 6 is also a major theme in this life for you. As suggested in the name this energy appearing so heavily in your chart tells me that you are driven in this life to help others in some way. As your chart unfolds for me it is very likely that you are involved or aspire to be some type of coach, therapist, counselor, psychologist or other jobs that involve serving on this level.

Having so much 6 energy in combination with 1 energy also indicates that you may struggle at times with personal boundaries. Because helping is so engraved into your beingness you may have a difficult time finding balance between being helpful and being over assertive into the lives of those you love. Again, there is nothing but well meaning intent here with a desire to serve but you may need to remind yourself that not everyone in your life is asking for your help and sometimes it's best to simply hold space for those we love and allow them to learn their lessons in their own time through their own means. This amazing and beautiful energy will be of much more service to the world when being used with those who seek your advice, and people will flock to you for your wisdom and guidance naturally so you will have plenty of opportunities to utilize your gifts and abilities for the betterment of all.

It is also important to mention that because this number is a reflection of your outer way of being and then having it show up again in your chart tells me that your inner reflects your outer. In other words, you are not one for putting on shows to please others and you own exactly who you are with pride. You aren't afraid to just be you, and your strong sense of security gives you the confidence to not be bothered by how others may see you. This is a beautiful quality that I wish more people possessed, it's a beautiful thing witnessing someone fearlessly walk their path in authenticity. This energy will serve you well in your work here on earth.

Maturity Number (MN6) The Caregiver

Your maturity number gives details about the second part of your life. We enter into the energy of this number between the age of 40 to 45. Depending on your current age this could be a glimpse into the future or simply added details to your present-day reality.

I feel like I did a pretty good job explaining the energy of 6 in your PN so I am going to focus on how this energy plays into your future. For you, this is a glimpse into your future as the maturity number is the indicator of the direction your life is currently headed in and what you can expect in the second part of your life.

I see, in having 6 show up a second time here in your chart that your dedication to your path leads you exactly where your destiny has been leading you on your sacred journey through this physical experience.

It indicates that by the time you reach the second part of your life you will be firmly established in your chosen career and with the number 8 being present as your LPN this also indicates that you will be financially secure and stable as well.

All in all, from what I am seeing here I feel that you have a focus and dedication to a plan and this energy showing up here for you tells me that you will be 100% supported, guided, and successful in your endeavors. You have the ability to create magic and it looks to me that you intend to do just that.

Current Name Number (CNN2) -The Peacemaker

This number describes the energy of your current name. Think of it as the energetic stamp or signature when your name is thought of or spoken.

This tells me that again you are very much authentic to who you are. The energy of your current name is one of healing, serving, cooperation, and it is repeated here for the fourth time in your chart that you are driven towards serving others through coaching, counseling, or offering therapy of some kind, most likely on a mental or spiritual level.

There is a lot of compassion in the energy of number 2 which is another reason why the wounded are naturally drawn to you. You have a way of making people feel safe in your presence and it is likely that even strangers open up to you on a regular basis. The combination of your authenticity and natural ability to heal others through the sound advice you offer attracts to you those who need this type of medicine most.

I feel that you are most likely extremely empathetic, and probably a natural born empath. Having so many energies of service and compassion means that you have a lot that is always going out energetically. A daily practice is a must for someone with so many of these types of energies.

You will need to be mindful throughout your life of making this a priority. Your intense drive to serve will make it easy for you to put your own needs on the back burner but you must always remember that you can't do your best work from a place of depletion.

The Birthday Number (BDN1) – The Independent

The Birthday number add additional details and clarity to the layers of your chart.

Here it is again, this beautiful powerful independent energy of 1. This just confirms even more so as discussed above your independent and adventurous nature. It also confirms your confidence and drive. You my dear, have a lot of power inside of you and it has shown up in such beautiful ways repeating the same messages so strongly throughout your chart.

Do be careful to not push to hard for perfection as that can be a downfall to many of the energies present in this chart. As the saying go strive for progress not perfection.

To recap what was discussed before, this number also indicates you unique way of being you, your authenticity, confidence to walk the path less traveled, and the fierce desire to be self-sufficient and provide the stability you need in your own life rather than depending on someone else to provide that.

You won't be at your happiest times when you feel you are dependent on anyone else for anything, remember everyone needs someone sometimes and once in a while just allow someone else to be the caregiver to you.

Karmic Numbers

Karmic Lessons: 3

Karmic lessons are lessons that you are meant to learn in this lifetime. Not everyone will have karmic lesson numbers but that doesn't mean that there are no lessons to be learned. It just means your lessons are detailed within your current life chart.

You had two numbers actual show up for you here, 3 and 7, but because seven was already present in your chart we have already discussed the lessons of that number. Having 3 show up as one of your karmic lessons is a reminder to be easy. It reminds you to be willing to go with the flow when needed and most importantly to be gentle on yourself. The energy of 3 pushes you to take on a lighter energy and to be gentle on yourself as you may have the tendency to be critical and harsh in your judgments against yourself.

Karmic Debt: 16/7 19/1

Not everyone has karmic debt numbers, if you don't that just means you resolved everything you needed to in your last life, if you do have karmic debt numbers show up in your chart, these are just the lessons that will repeat themselves in your lives until you have overcome the lesson.

You have two karmic debt numbers in your chart 16/7 and 19/1.

Starting with 16/7, this tells me that you may struggle with your ego and shadow. It's important to get really clear on the voice of ego and the voice of your inner being because this karmic debt number showing up indicates that your ego may have a very loud voice in your physical experiences, meaning not only in this life but that this has caused problems for you in past lives as well.

It's also indicates that you may at times struggle with being short tempered or impatient with people in certain situations and it serves as a reminder to tap into your natural way of being, kind, loving, and compassionate when you find yourself being triggered by others.

Next there is 19/1 which tells me that you may struggle with control issues, frustrations and resentments surfacing when you don't feel you have control over a situation. This is also a reminder to you that again, you must be willing to take help and assistance from others when it is offered to you.

You may stumble a lot in dealing with these lessons, however the more you are able to consciously sit with your shadow and shed light on the workings of these lower vibrational energies that live within each of us and within every fiber of the Universe, the more quickly you will be able to learn your lessons and then gather your blessings.

It is through the practice of growth beyond the voice of ego that we are able to fully connect with our inner being and overcome the nagging callings to a lower vibrational way of being.

This concludes your chart. Please don't hesitate to reach out to me with any questions or feedback you have about your Seven Point Personality chart.
