Cobalt and Marijuana

The Blockchains are moving, this time with Blue and Green Cash.

Are You Looking for an Investment for the Future?

The Motley Fool has TWO right Here.

The US Dollar currency is dying, and people are scrambling for a place to put their hard-earned dollars. The blockchains of indestructible data are being threatened into extinction. The stock market is moving funds into the cryptocurrencies and bitcoins that are readily available worldwide. Apple knows it, and so does the NY Stock Exchange.

What does this all mean, and how will it affect the everyday stockholders and would be investors?

Hello,

My name is Cynthia Saarie. I'm a stock evaluator on staff, under the Founders of the Motley Fool Stock Advisor, Tom and David Gardner. I want to tell you about Blue and Green Cash. You will be amazed that very few people know about this, But the ones that DO, don't want You or anyone else to know. That's why Tom and David let information like this out only to those that subscribe to The Motley Fool Stock Advisor. We won't keep news like this concealed.

The Motley Fool Stock Advisor has the Answers.

Warren Buffett is buying more Apple Stock. (NASDAQ: AAPL trading at $186.) Warren's Berkshire Hathaway, the money giant, is eating more than 5% of the available Apple stock. What does he suspect the trend will be that is changing and leading him to buy more Apple stock? The answer is Blue. A blue rock that can make you more green cash!

Besides Gold, Cobalt is the Metal that is King.

Berkshire Hathaway is purchasing more Apple stock.

Gray-Blue is the color of Cobalt. Warren knows that computers need cobalt for their computer batteries. Apple is in quiet dealings; purchasing companies that mine cobalt. This metal is in very limited quantities and is found in very few areas worldwide. The Democratic Republic of the Congo has the largest supply. Because this country is in an ongoing civil war, mining cobalt there is dangerous. When work stoppages halt production, cobalt prices bolt skyward and could spiral out of control soon. The United States has only 14% of the world's supply of cobalt, leaving companies like Apple scrambling to secure their supply for the future. Glencore, a Canadian Company, (GLCNF: OTC US) is the largest mining company of our US supply. I believe they will be joining the US NASDAQ soon. Recently, the US steel and aluminum companies have brought in lower trading valuations, making it a great time to buy this stock. The Motley Fool will keep you in touch with this trending metal and the impact it will have on the computer and battery industry markets.

Our Founders, Tom and David Gardner, ensure the data distribution by The Motley Fool is reliable and current. They pride themselves on surpassing the industry standards of information supplied to consumers. The Motley Fool Stock Advisor makes sure the stocks they recommend to You and their subscribers, more than meets expectations. They inspect and dissect companies to explain their reasoning on the recommendations they put forward for investment opportunities. You can be certain the information is accurate and precise.

The Motley Fool recommends buying Glencore.

Medical Marijuana is on the Threshold of Advancing into Mainstream Use.

~~Test Copy Letter to be used against current promotion — REFUSED Glencore not in USA~~

Marijuana is now legal for medical use in 29 states and Washington, DC. Recreational marijuana is used in 8 states, marginally passing this year in Maine. Arizona defeated the bill 52% to 48%, a difference of 9,000 votes. It likely will pass during the next round of votes. These changes are taking place now. The debates will continue to be highly contested on the reliability of content and support of the medical societies. Opioid use in teens has decreased where recreational marijuana has become legal. These are proven facts. The Motley Fool will keep You on top of current and important information that You need to make decisions.

It has been proven that medical marijuana, largely prescribed for cancer patient use, has properties that increased patient's appetite, curbed vomiting, and relaxed anxiety. It has shown a marked improvement in treating severe epileptic conditions, and tremors in Parkinson's patients. This research is just the beginning. The Motley Fool will keep You on the cutting edge.

The Motley Fool has done extensive research on the companies that are at the forefront of exploring the frontiers of the CBD's in marijuana. CBD's are the component of marijuana that does not contain the hallucinogenic properties that THC does. Only 40% of the marijuana plant produces CBD's. The oils extracted from the plant result in what many cancer patients consider miraculous properties. The result revealed the strengthening of bodies that have been ravaged by chemotherapies and radiation. Returning patients to health means longer life expectancies.

Canada had the first group of marijuana stocks. Companies comprised of growers and suppliers. Canada legalized medical marijuana nationwide in 2001. They are going to legalize recreational use in the very near future. Originally slated for July, now announced it would start a little later in 2018. The Motley Fool Stock Advisors want their subscribers to stay up to date.

The largest company and the one at the forefront of development and expansion into the US and Germany is Canopy Growth (OTC Mkts: TWMJF).

Canopy Growth's petition was approved and will begin trading on the NY Stock Exchange by the end of May 2018.

Canopy Growth has traded in Canada with a low of $25 and a high of $28. This exponential growth in the last year is the reason why this stock is:

Currently, Canopy Growth is up 8.29%. The Motley Fool predicts the growth of this product and company has been greatly underestimated. Exponential growth is predicted in the next year. As more states legalize medical marijuana, demand for highest quality product increases.

The US is gaining a huge stock and large tax basis for each state that instates the recreational and medical use. As of the end of March 2018, the tax revenue collected in Hawaii was $1.3 million. In NY, $16 million. In Massachusetts, recreational use resulted in $1 million in taxes in one month and predicts $82 million by year's end. Between 2014 and 2017, Colorado has received over one half billion in tax revenue. Colorado has both recreational and medical use.
