

Stacey Kay

Stacey Kay is a JUNO Award-winning singer, rapper, comedian, and motivational speaker whose powerhouse vocals and lightning-fast rap have made her a viral sensation — earning millions of views and recognition from stars like BeBe Rexha, RuPaul, Meghan Trainor, Fergie, Iggy Azalea, Jennifer Hudson, and Chris Brown.

Stacey was a finalist on America's Got Talent and later captured the nation when Kardinal Offishall smashed the Golden Buzzer for her on Canada's Got Talent, cementing her place as one of the most unforgettable performers in the country. With her signature blend of jaw-dropping vocals, fearless comedy, and unfiltered storytelling, Stacey doesn't just entertain — she inspires. Through her keynote concerts and speaking engagements, she champions body positivity and shares what it's like navigating the entertainment industry as a curvy woman, delivering messages of confidence and self-acceptance to audiences worldwide.

Stacey has performed across Canada, the U.S., Asia, and Europe, and has shared the stage with icons including David Foster, CeeLo Green, Stevie Wonder, Brian McKnight, Michael Bolton, Carly Rae Jepsen, and Kaitlyn Bristowe (The Bachelorette, Dancing with the Stars). She also writes and produces for other artists, and has landed featured tracks on RuPaul's Drag Race.

She has released a full-length album along with newly released singles, showcasing her signature blend of pop-soul vocals, rapid-fire rap, and a sassy, fun energy that's all her own. Offstage, Stacey co-hosts the hit comedy podcast I Have To Call My Sister with her sister, where she shares the same humour, chaos, and honesty that make her live shows so magnetic.
