GradPal was created with a specific mission in mind: to cultivate and improve talent, no matter where in the world it is, and to help students gain admission to coveted US universities.

In addition to our private services, GradPal is proud to be launching several new initiatives, including our Access Program – a certificate course taught by Ivy League students that includes everything you need to know about attending the top schools in the USA

CEO Profile

Ryan Michael Jordan

In addition to running GradPal, Ryan is involved in several other for-profit and non-profit projects. At Harvard, Ryan studied History, Middle Eastern Studies, and African Studies.

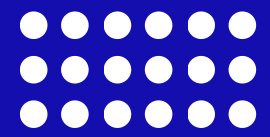

GradPal's Mission

With connections to all of the top schools in the United States, GradPal offers a pathway shaped by insider knowledge for students to understand what is necessary to secure a successful admission. Our mission is to identify and develop talent, equip students with the tools and knowledge needed to make it to the US, and to prepare them for a successful educational and professional journey.

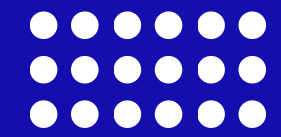

GradPal's Vision

Our vision over the next several years is to be the preeminent educational advising and tutoring company in Africa and the Middle East. We aim to be the “place to go” in order to identify top talent and to continue being a strong partner in supporting global education and opportunities for students in the US.

Benefits of Studying in the US

01

Career Opportunities

Earn some of the highest wages in the world, with many successful students going on to make more than $100,000/ year after graduation (over 160 million Naira, 1.5 million Cedis, 12 million Kenyan Shillings/ Birr).

Unlike the UK or French systems, if you get into a US university, you do not need to commit to a degree program immediately. This gives students the chance to pursue their passions and work to access better fields.

02

Academic Flexibility

Expand Your Network

03

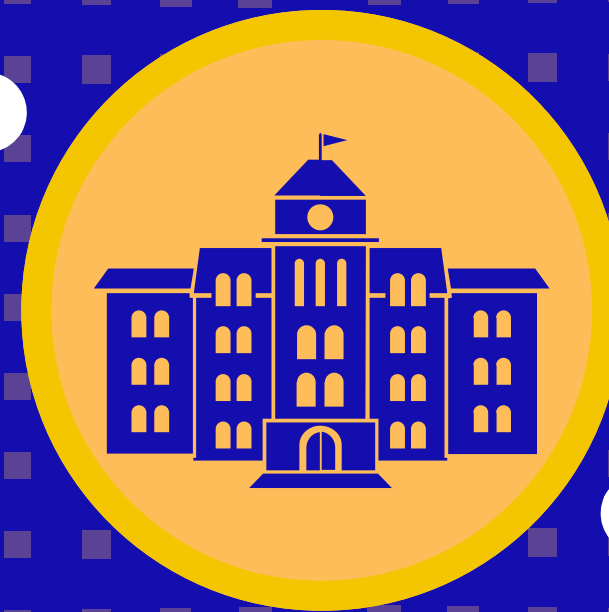

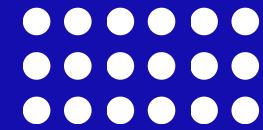

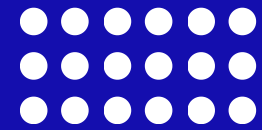

In the United States, every fellow student is a potential cofounder, future investor, and friend and ally. With global talent coming to the US every day, you will be able to access the best people and most capital in the world.

With the majority of the world's top universities in one country, studying in the US places you in a position to receive the best education possible and to have cutting edge resources immediately available to you.

The Access Program is designed to be a complete introduction to what the university admissions process looks like for studying in the United States. Students will have access to unique insider views from the students currently at these top schools, and through the Access Program students will work with Ivy League students to develop an individualized outline and “plan of attack” for how to approach their remaining school years before applications. The Access Program is designed to inform students and to prepare them for what they need to know and do, and GradPal offers additional programs helping students execute and receive successful admission decisions.
