CONTACT INFORMATION: 912-704-2222 | mark@burrowsfg.com

Professional Background

Mark brings a 23-year career in military aviation, including combat deployments flying helicopters in Iraq and Afghanistan, where he served as a standardization pilot responsible for training and evaluating the Squadron's aviators. Following his military career, he flew as a MEDEVAC pilot for AirLife Denver and Flight for Life Colorado. He now owns and operates Burrows Financial Group, an insurance and estate planning firm specializing in estate planning, including special needs trusts, helping families protect and provide for loved ones with disabilities.

Connection to the Mission

Mark serves families across the community in financial services, with particular expertise in estate planning for families of loved ones with special needs, giving him firsthand insight into the challenges these families face and the importance of building lasting structures of support. His military career, built on training and mentoring others to perform under pressure, reflects the same belief that drives our Foundation's mission: that every individual deserves the opportunity to develop their abilities and lead.

Board Responsibilities & Contributions

Mark supports the Foundation's financial oversight, helping guide budgeting, program investment strategies, and long-term financial sustainability. He serves as an advocate for advising on insurance, risk management, and estate and trust planning matters relevant to the families the Foundation serves.

Community & Volunteer Involvement

Mark has volunteered with Special Olympics and Habitat for Humanity, and regularly donates to local schools and various nonprofit organizations supporting his community.
