Creativity is making new connections and new synapses. Explaining art's effect on the brain is most impaction in children.

The neural pathways created while engaging in art better prepare the brain for learning new skills throughout life, and not just for their art skills, it helps math language and science too. Art is a platform for children to unleash their boundless creativity and imagination. Through art, kids can express themselves freely and explore different ideas, concepts, and perspectives. They can experiment with
