The Origin of Pizza

Pizza is a type of food that was first made in Italy. It was made by putting "toppings" over a piece of bread covered with sauce. The sauce is mostly made from tomato.

The piece of bread is usually called a "pizza crust". Almost any kind of topping can be put over a pizza. The toppings used are different in different parts of the world.

Pizza was invented in Naples 200 years ago. It is the name for a special type of flatbread, made with special dough. It was taken to the United States in the late 19th century.

Pizzas consist of the same basic design. Some of the most common toppings are cheese, sausages, pepperoni, vegetables, tomatoes, spices and herbs and basil.

In Pizza Restaurants (Pizzerias) it is served in a dish in its traditional round shape. The first pizzeria in Italy, started making pizzas in 1738 and still serves pizza today.
