Dear dear Paul,

Please excuse this delayed message... Christmas time has been a very pleasant one but - so sorry you seemed to have been neglected - but nothin' though and prayers.

We were with your dear family today and we're truly blessed to ^{have} enjoyed the wonderful hours at 315... Your parents' home is most inviting and the company of your sisters, ^{their} husbands and children most cheerful and loving... Sorry for your absence - but this note at least can assure you that you're with us in spirit. The pray Christmas time always remain in your heart... And that '99 will bring special blessings to make it an outstanding year.

Hopefully it will not be too long in time when we will see you... In meantime we pray all things go well for you and that your goals are reached as you keep aiming onward.

We're trying our best to keep healthy and busy... Thank God we are faring well.

Take extra good care of yourself and we'll keep you in our uppermost prayer-list.

Before our Fare-thee-well we want to say a hearty Thank You for the precious note you lovingly sent us last year (seems like it was only a few days ago that it was Christmas '98.) Thanks for your thoughts of us.

Blessings and
Love
