THE UNITY OF A RIVER

There is an inward voice in the stream
That sends forth its spirit to the listening ear
And calmly content, it flows on.

Like Wisdom, it spreads its banks to enfold many.
Clearly it puts forth its radiant thoughts and carries the water of knowledge
To all who thirst and need.

It receives the green and comely trees with a love unbound
And floats on in serenest blue
To find others
Who desire its strength and love.

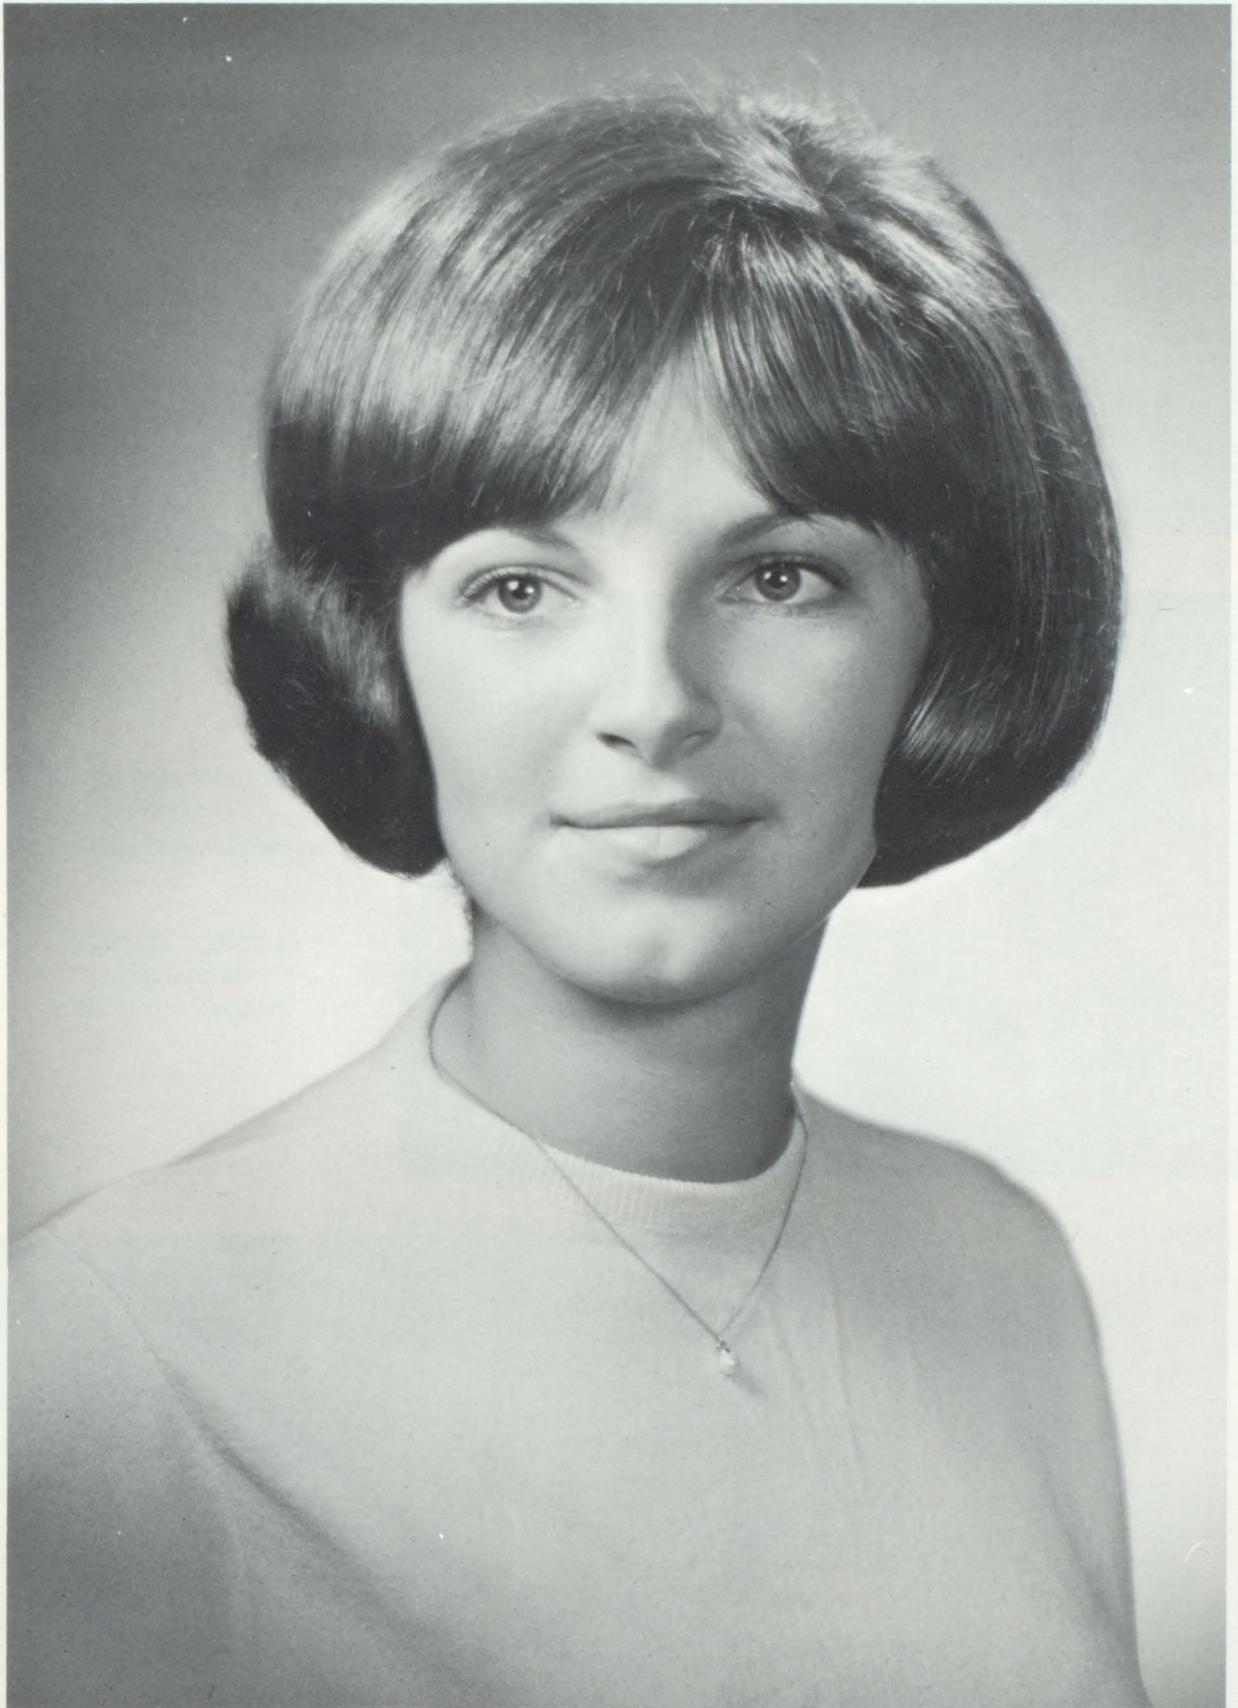

Tho' rock may part for an instant,
this ribbon of life,
Never can it break the unity, the oneness
of this eternal stream.
Tho' winds blow fiercely down and hail pelts it with dull words,
After the maelstrom has passed,
This mellifluous river flows perpetually on.

THE WRITTEN WORD

IF THE DAY TO DAY CONVERSATION WERE TAPED, ONE MIGHT WELL SEE A REFLECTION OF HIMSELF AND HIS WORLD.

THE SAME MAY BE SAID OF THE WRITTEN WORD, WHETHER THAT WRITING BE A POEM OR A STORY, IT IS ALWAYS MORE THAN THAT. IT IS ALWAYS A PART OF THE PERSON WHO WROTE - HIS THOUGHTS, HIS DREAMS. LIKEWISE, IT IS ALWAYS A PICTURE OF HIS WORLD - A WORLD IN WHICH HE SEARCHES FOR MEANING IN THE MIDST OF ABSURDITY, SECURITY IN THE MIDST OF CHAOS; PEACE IN THE MIDST OF WAR.

THIS IS WHAT SOME OF OUR SENIORS HAVE REVEALED IN THEIR ATTEMPTS AT LITERARY EXPRESSION.

MY VALLEY

My valley is so peaceful because never a cannon was fired there and not a war raged ever there,
I shall die to keep it this way
for you see I cherish my home,
I cherish each tree, each leaf
My cabin there beneath the pines.
I awake to see the sun rise and kiss my world!

I know that the sounds of war
I will not hear today for above my cabin in a tree a bird's song I hear
My God keep my valley free!
And there below the river flows on looking for peace I love so and willing to drown the sounds of destruction.

Why is man so contentious?
I do not know -
I am different from them;
for, you see, I live in peace and I'm not bothered by the terror of living in the midst of total chaos,
In fear that tomorrow war
Might creep upon these hills and destroy the world and mankind with it.

THE ROSE

Waking to the soft patter of rain on my window-pane, I decided to clean out my "junk" drawers. After a hearty breakfast of eggs, toast, and juice, I bounded up the stairs, determined not to put it off any longer.

As I pulled out the first drawer, I was amazed at the collection of odds and ends that had piled up. The faint scent of carnation wafted up from a crumbling corsage. My first real dance. Boy! Was that an event! And what was his name? Johnny-Something or other? Oh, well, no use in saving an old bit of corsage. Into the basket with you.

Next came a faded collection of notes. Now why had I saved those? Ah, yes, they were from my biology class. That was the year I had a mad crush on the practice teacher. I mean, how dumb can you get? A tiny seashell - that summer had been fun, too. Andy, Bill, and best of all - Jerry.

Two wastebaskets and several drawers later, I found THE ROSE; although faded and torn, the rose still retained an air about it. As the scent reached my nostrils, the memories flooded back. It seemed only yesterday that my father held me in his arms and kissed me good-bye. "How handsome you look, Daddy", I whispered into his crisp brown collar. After kissing mother once more, he hurried down the front steps, gripping his duffel bag tightly. As he passed through the gate, he stooped to pick up something.

"Beth" he called to me, "come here. I have something for you." As I stumbled down the steps, he held the fallen rose out to me. It had been trodden on and the petals were slightly damaged.

"Put this in a vase for me till I come home." I had put the rose in the water, but soon the petals withered and dried up. Still my Daddy had not come back. One day my mother came into my room and lifted the rose from the vase.

"Darling, you can throw the rose away now. Daddy has come home."

She spoke quietly and in a sad voice. The telegram had said "... gave his life for his country."

The salty taste of tears drew me back to the present. Gathering the remaining pieces of the tattered, old rose, I placed them carefully in an envelope. On the front of the envelope I pencilled these words: "To Beth, From Daddy".

HENRIETTA DAIGLE

THOUGHTFUL MOOD

With slow, deliberate steps, I sauntered along the road, conscious and yet in a way, unconscious, of everything around me. With my hands thrust deep in my pockets, my head cast downward, sometimes to be lifted upon an urge, I unintentionally bring myself farther and farther away from home and from reality. The cold night air is warmed slightly by the gently falling snow, falling almost unseen on my face and clothes. I refuse to acknowledge anyone. I am alone, only my thoughts prevail. There is not a sound around me, only sweet quietness necessary for reflection. My face seems overcome with sadness, but wait ... look deeper, I am thinking.

CARMEN MICHAUD

LEND A HELPING HAND

My Brother's cries filled my ears
Cries that are rendered hopeless
Man rids himself of feeling
Lost, he lies in the light of the darkest day
Darkness comes like a terrifying giant.

Here I stand looking for the downly beams
The lights of heaven, the lights of lost love
Darkening clouds cover the mountains
And stillness avenges the thundering cries
Brother looks at brother - sobbing ceases.

See my friends - my loved ones,
And sing mankind - sing anew.
From mountain tops see your kind
Speak a word of kindness - lend a helping hand
Remember that you are God's children
And He is your loving Father.

JERRY SINCLAIR

THE END

It was raining outside, softly and steadily. It was dreary as was the home's atmosphere. Tommy and Sherry were eating quietly. Sherry was listening to the silence and the emptiness of her heart.

"Tommy, why, why do you have to leave? I can't bear it staying here without you for two whole years," she cried helplessly, all her depression surfacing.

Tommy held her close, this precious little world of his, whom he must leave for what seemed like forever. He didn't let her see his feelings but comforted her instead. "It's alright, Baby, I'll be back before you know it."

Sherry didn't see him off at the station - she couldn't bear it. Besides that was only done in the movies, where actors just expressed fake sadness; not like what she felt in her heart, the real loneliness she must endure for a long, long time.

Tommy wasn't himself, sitting in the barracks. All he thought of was Sherry, Sherry, Sherry. "God, I miss you Baby!" He kept thinking of her, and their home and their future together. Funny, saying "the future" didn't sound right.

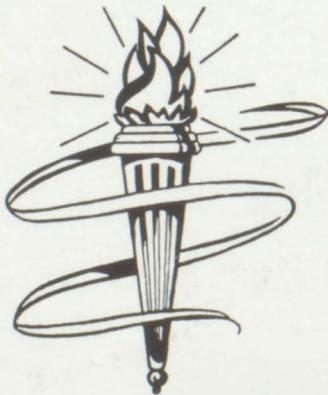

Sherry had just finished painting the old desk. She had been keeping herself busy, "Gee it's been eight months now." She let out a sigh and continued working, working hard just to get her mind off ... anything to keep the loneliness from settling in her heart.

What really startled her was not the sound of the doorbell, but its echo ringing throughout the house.

She put her best self forward, went to the door with a lovely smile, opened ... the sight of the messenger boy with the pink envelope in his hand was enough---. She knew this was the end.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

While there may be many satisfactions and encouragements scattered throughout a high school student's career, no greater recognition or honor will be paid him by his school than membership in the National Honor Society. Other honors at the disposal of the school are only partial in the sense that they recognize special ability, skill, or talent; but this Society looks upon education as a total product measured by the four dimensions of life - Scholarship, Leadership, Service, Character.

Wisdom High School is justly proud of the achievement of these students and of all its graduate members of the National Honor Society.

THE SEARCH

I am drowning in a sea of trouble with problems tossed high and low;
And amid all of this chaos
I don't know where to go.

The world is searching for something,
A truth it cannot find;
But how can it live in love and peace
When people can't find peace of mind?

The source of our trials is deeper,
Deeper than war, riots, and crimes;
It's rooted in the heart of every man
And has been since the beginning of time.

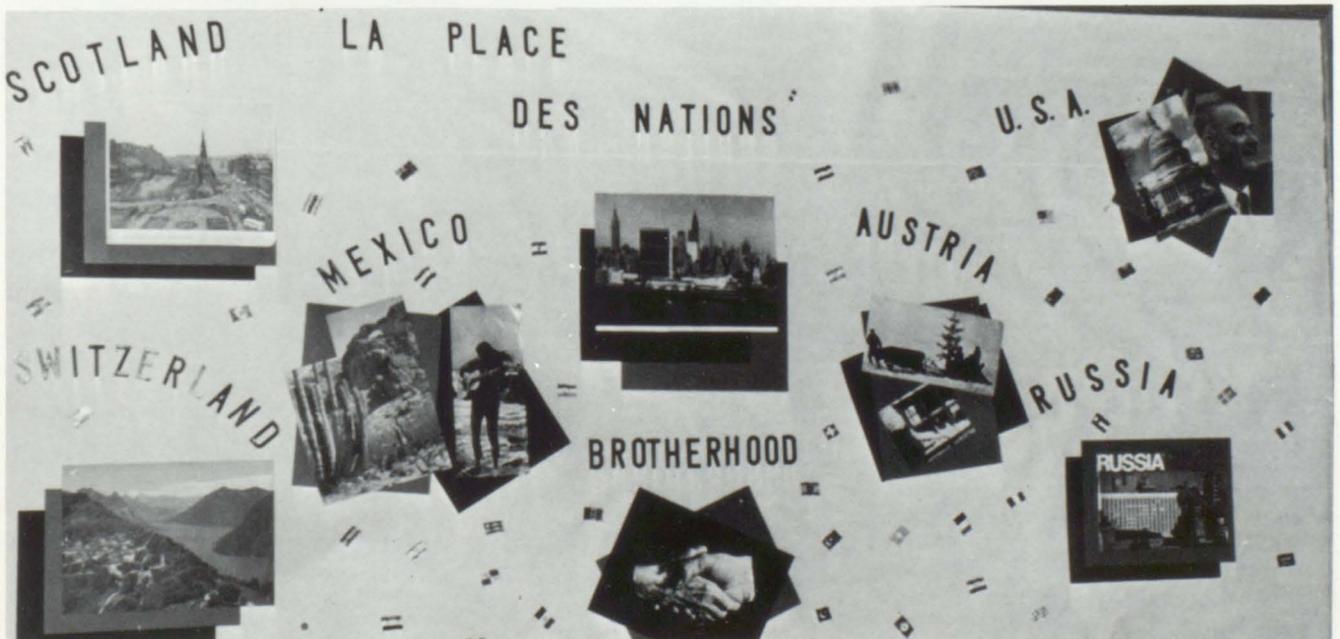

People speak of solutions
To problems they cause more than help;
Too often their concern is for honor and glory,
their power, popularity, and wealth.

BROTHERHOOD

So until mankind
Gets together and finds,
An island where peace can survive
And we share the brotherhood
God gave us all,
We won't find the purpose of our lives.

WHAT IS THIS THING?

What is this thing that moves a mountain,
or spans an ocean wide.
This thing that makes or breaks a nation,
a people, or a school.

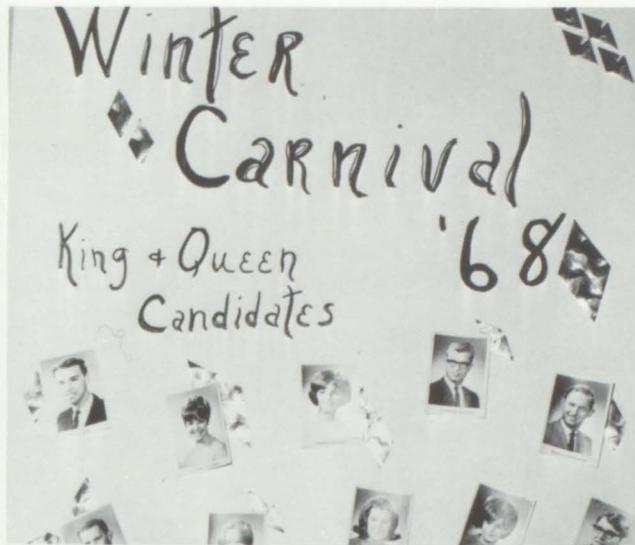

What is this thing all men profess
And yet so few can show it.
The key to making people feel ten feet tall or very small.

What is this thing in Carnival that makes us all aware
This thing that makes for marvels
And is beyond compare.

You ask me for a secret
A thing, a magic key,
My fellow man, it's none of these.
No need to look so long or far,
It lies within you now,
Simply my brother-
It's the power of your love.
