

SpellBound Features and Uses

	Name	Menu Item	Uses	Features	Story
	Magic Tree Cards	"SpellBound Extras"	Quick distraction for short procedures; great for gifting to families as it's free to use in the app.	Touch the three silhouetted animals (elephant, jaguar, turtle) on screen or on the card to see them come alive and hear sounds.	"I was able to calm a child who was freaking out during her blood draw using the [Quick Distract] card." - Bethany, CCLS
	Journey Cards	"SpellBound Extras"	Quick distraction for short procedures; collectible cards that can be given to patients to mark milestone achievements.	Touch the animal on the screen to see and hear it react. When multiple cards are combined, the animals interact with one another.	"I'd place the elephant on the machines in the patient's room as a fun way of introducing the equipment." - Becca, CCLS
	Castle Lionheart Card and placemat	"Quick Distract Cards"	Distraction during longer procedures; occupational therapy.	Castle: touch the turrets to make fire, touch the central tower 4 times to make horns appear, touch the drawbridge to open/close, touch the water to make splashes. Joust tournament: touch the crowd to make them cheer; touch the field to make the riders joust. Farmland: touch the field to make the farmers plant it; touch the crops to "pick" them; touch the huts multiple times quickly to make them collapse. Joust tournament: touch the crowd to make them cheer; touch the field to make the riders joust. Farmland: touch the field to make the farmers plant it; touch the crops to "pick" them; touch the huts multiple times quickly to make them collapse.	"This is a whole miniature world that really gets the kids engaged." - Kara, CCLS "The variety of gestures is great and the multi-touch interactions help improve accuracy. And even the card is good for practicing grasping and pinching." - Jamie, OT
	Sleep Sweet Book	"Sleep Sweet"	Designed for situations and procedures that require a child to sit and wait calmly for longer periods of time.	Reads the book aloud with music. Items that flash on screen can be touched to trigger an interaction.	"It's not just something for the patients. It's something for the brothers and sisters, the cousins and all the friends, to look forward to when they come to the hospital to visit. It makes the hospital less scary for them as well." - JJ, CCLS
	Albert the Confused Manatee Book	"Albert the Confused Manatee"	Same as above - examples include: CT scans, dressing changes, sleep study prep, long-term patient stays, etc.	Reads the book aloud. Touch Albert on each page to see him react. Touch bubbles to pop them and touch the other animals to hear fun facts.	"A child life specialist in the OR had a patient who was inconsolable. They pulled out the SpellBound app and the Albert the Manatee book and she immediately stopped screaming and yelling, started interacting with the book and was playing with it all the way into the OR until she got sedated to go to sleep." - Andrea, CCLS