FCCLA Unites Youth on Capitol Hill during Capitol Leadership Meeting

Youth Leaders Gather to Advocate for Teen Issues with Legislative Representatives

Washington, D.C. – November 9, 2017 – Red jackets will soon be filling the halls and lining the steps of the Capitol. Why?

Family, Career and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA) will bring over 250 of its student leaders and advisers to Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C., this week to participate in FCCLA's Capitol Leadership meeting.

During Capitol Leadership, students will receive training focusing on networking, professionalism, strategic planning, and advocacy around key teen-centered current issues. Students will advocate for Family and Consumer Sciences and Career and Technical Education by showing policymakers how their support for education impacts teens in preparing to be college- and career-ready. An important aspect of Capitol Leadership features today's teens meeting with their representatives to explain the importance of continued support for the Strengthening Career and Technical Education Act, which reauthorizes the Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act of 2006.

Attendees will also hear from panel experts focusing on four specific career pathways: Hospitality and Tourism, Visual Arts and Design, Human Services, and Education and Training. Teen leaders will learn more about the opportunities within these career paths and Family and Consumer Sciences Education. Featured guest speakers and instructors include Jeff Bland, chef with U.S. Foods; Lendrell Martin, technical designer with Ann Taylor; Elisa Kunz, volunteer and youth programs with the National Park Service; and Ashley Nelson, National FCCLA Outreach and Professional Development Manager.

Capitol Leadership is the first of several large gatherings FCCLA will host throughout the 2017-2018 school year to provide similar opportunities to students around the nation.
