Spirit Week – A New SGA Tradition

For the first time ever, Saint George Academy (SGA) conducted Spirit Week, a schoolwide event to encourage school spirit and ring in the coming Christmas holidays. The event, which is now sure to become an SGA tradition, was spearheaded by SGA Guidance Counselor Nicole Giovenco.

Spirit Week lasted from December 3-7, and with every day, there was a new surprise.

On the first day, Twin Day, students and faculty were encouraged to come to school dressed as twins with someone else. Then, on the second day, the entire school traveled to West Point Military Academy for an amazing and informative private tour of the grounds given by Captain Jae Kim, Commander, West Point Eastern Division. Students also visited the museum.

On the third day, students dressed as their favorite literary or historical figures while the fourth day was pajama day.

The event culminated in an evening soiree organized by SGA Art Teacher, Ms. Irene Saviano that included an art exhibit of the students' work, a photo exhibit, entertainment and snacks for the students, as well as a wine and cheese for parents and teachers.
