

Love Bravely

Bold hearts choose love—even when it feels risky.

I choose love even when fear tries to speak louder.

My heart is allowed to be open and protected at the same time.

I am brave enough to feel deeply and honestly.

Love does not require perfection—only presence.

I release the need for guarantees and trust myself instead.

Vulnerability is not weakness; it is courage in motion.

This year, I love boldly, intentionally, and without hiding.

Created by Karlene Pitters • Books By Karlene • www.jamericandream.com