PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Our lives are characterized by milestones. Our first birthday is a milestone. Our first steps and first words, our first day of kindergarten, graduation from middle school are all milestones in our lives. I can remember clearly the day I turned sixteen, and I went down to the Department of Motor Vehicles and passed my driver's license. Other milestones include high school graduation, maybe college and grad school graduations. Then there might be marriage, our first real job, first home, wedding anniversaries, and retirement. All these things mark important as parts of our life journey, and they need to be celebrated.

This year is a huge milestone in our country's history as we celebrate our two-hundred fiftieth anniversary of its founding. There have been many milestones along the way, some good and some not so good. But we are still here, still free, and still thriving. We have been able to maintain the course that was set before us by our founding fathers. I am afraid that few of us can really comprehend the struggles and sacrifices that were made by so many to establish the United States of America. In these next few months take advantage of all the historical information that will be available concerning the birth and the many milestones in the history of this great country. They are living reminders of who we are and who we still want to become.

This year Tuscarilla is marking a milestone. Forty-five years ago, Tuscarilla was established, and the Tuscarilla Homeowners Association was founded. As you know Tuscarilla is one of the few premier planned communities in Seminole County. The bylaws stated that there would be a monthly newsletter to keep the community informed. Over the years this newsletter has evolved into the Tuscarilla Today Magazine. The association works together with the city leaders, the police department, neighboring communities and the county leadership to keep this a wonderful place to live. Recently we came across a treasure trove of documents from the founding of the association. We will be sharing these periodically in our magazine.

Do you or someone you know in Tuscarilla have a special hobby, unique profession or insightful travel experience that would be interesting for our readers? Has your community completed notable improvements or planned an important event? Let me know and we will be glad to include these news items in a future issue of Tuscarilla Today. Thank you, Kathy McCann. I can be contacted at: EditorKathyMcCann@gmail.com.

I recently talked to a person who has a business of buying and renovating homes. He does great work. He says that homes in Tuscarilla are in great demand. He enjoys seeing them restored. Tuscarilla still is a premier community, and your Board of Directors through the years has helped make this happen. Your support is increasingly essential for our future. Faithful residents and friends are our strength in keeping Tuscarilla a great place to live. Please remember to pay your $40 dues either by mail or on our website. Thank you for your continued support of your Homeowners Association and on February fourteen enjoy Valentines Day.

LUNAR NEW YEAR: WELCOMING A FRESH START WITH THE YEAR OF THE HORSE

Each year, sometime between late January and mid February, millions of people around the world welcome the Lunar New Year. Celebrated across many cultures in East and Southeast Asia, the holiday is marked by bright colors, family gatherings, and traditions centered on renewal, gratitude, and good fortune. While customs differ from place to place, the shared spirit of optimism is what unites them.

Lunar New Year is most commonly associated with Chinese culture, where it is often called the Spring Festival, but it is also widely celebrated in Korean, Vietnamese, and other Asian communities. In Korea, the holiday is known as Seollal, a time for honoring ancestors and spending meaningful time with family. In Vietnam, it is called Tết, the most important holiday of the year, focused on fresh starts, respect for elders, and welcoming prosperity. Similar celebrations can be found in parts of Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, and beyond, each adding its own customs and flavors.

The holiday has ancient roots, dating back more than two thousand years, and originally followed agricultural cycles that marked the end of winter and the promise of spring. Over time, legends, rituals, and symbolic traditions developed to invite luck, health, and happiness in the year ahead. One of the most familiar elements is the lunar zodiac, with each year represented by an animal believed to reflect certain traits and characteristics.

Preparation is an important part of the celebration. Homes are cleaned to sweep away bad luck, decorations in red and gold are displayed to symbolize joy and prosperity, and special foods are prepared and shared. Fireworks, lanterns, and family meals all add to the festive atmosphere.

Here in Tuscawilla, Lunar New Year offers an opportunity to appreciate the cultural traditions that enrich our community. Even for those who do not celebrate it personally, the holiday carries a simple and universal message: each new year is a chance to move forward with hope, kindness, and a fresh perspective.

FEBRUARY YARD CARE AND PLANTING GUIDE FOR WINTER SPRINGS

February in Winter Springs may still feel like winter, but for Central Florida yards, it's a month full of opportunity. With cooler temperatures and lower humidity, this is one of the best times of year to plant, prepare, and plan for a healthy landscape heading into spring.

WHAT TO PLANT IN FEBRUARY

February is ideal for planting many trees, shrubs, and cool-season flowers. Hardy annuals like petunias, pansies, dianthus, and snapdragons perform beautifully right now and can add instant color to beds and entryways. It's also a great month to plant shrubs such as azaleas, camellias, and gardenias, which benefit from cooler weather while establishing roots.

For edible landscapes, February is prime time. Vegetables like lettuce, spinach, kale, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, and beets thrive in cooler conditions. Herbs such as parsley, cilantro, dill, and chives can also be planted now and will reward you quickly.

If you've been considering adding trees to your yard, winter is one of the best seasons to do it. Trees experience less stress when planted during cooler months, allowing roots to establish before summer heat arrives.

LAWN CARE TIPS FOR FEBRUARY

Most lawns in Winter Springs—whether St. Augustine, Zoysia, or Bahia—are still in winter dormancy or just beginning to wake up. February is not the time to fertilize. Applying fertilizer too early can encourage weak growth and increase the risk of disease. Plan to wait until consistent warm temperatures return, typically in March or April.

Continue mowing only as needed and keep mower blades sharp. Remove fallen leaves and debris to prevent fungus and pests. If weeds are a concern, February is an excellent time for pre-emergent weed control to help prevent spring weeds like crabgrass from taking hold.

WATERING AND MAINTENANCE

Watering needs are minimal this time of year. Overwatering is a common mistake in winter, so only irrigate if conditions are unusually dry. Take advantage of the cooler weather to refresh mulch, edge garden beds, and inspect irrigation systems for leaks or broken heads.

February is also a great month for light pruning of shrubs and trees—just avoid heavy pruning of spring-flowering plants, as you may remove upcoming blooms.

With a little attention now, your Winter Springs yard will be well-positioned to flourish as spring arrives. February is all about smart preparation—and the payoff is a healthier, more vibrant landscape all year long.

EDITOR'S NOTES

February is often thought of as a short month, but as this issue of Tuscawilla Today shows, it is filled with meaningful moments that reflect the strength, history, and heart of our community. From celebrations and traditions to service and stewardship, this month's stories highlight what makes Tuscawilla such a special place to call home.

One of the most visible reminders of our shared community spirit is the Scottish Highland Games, now in its 48th year and proudly held at Central Winds Park. As the largest annual event in Seminole County, the Games bring together thousands of visitors while showcasing heritage, athleticism, and hospitality. Events like this do not happen by accident. They are supported by engaged residents, volunteers, and organizations working together, and they serve as yet another example of the positive impact our community continues to have far beyond its borders.

February also brings moments of reflection and celebration closer to home. Valentine's Day reminds us that community is built not only on events and programs, but on everyday acts of kindness, friendship, and care for one another. Whether it is a neighbor lending a hand or a familiar smile on a morning walk, these small connections are the foundation of Tuscawilla.

We also recognize Lunar New Year, welcoming the Year of the Horse, a symbol traditionally associated with energy, strength, and forward movement. Celebrated across many cultures, Lunar New Year is a reminder of the diversity that enriches our community and the shared hope that each new year brings fresh opportunities and renewed purpose.

Presidents Day offers another moment to pause and reflect, reminding us that leadership at every level is rooted in service. That theme is echoed throughout this issue as we recognize volunteers who give their time and talents to improve our community. Residents like our friend Kim Coburn exemplify what it means to step forward and serve, quietly making a difference that strengthens Tuscawilla for everyone.

This month, we are especially proud to share the recognition of the Tuscawilla Home Owners Association by the Winter Springs Police Chief for THOA's consistent support of the Police Department. From toys for children, to the purchase of a Police K-9, to support for numerous outreach programs, this recognition underscores the real and tangible impact of THOA membership. Simply put, this is your membership at work.

We also take time this month to reflect on Tuscawilla's rich and carefully preserved history. Among the most fascinating reminders of our past is a feature included in this issue highlighting the first page of a seven-page historical document created in 1971–72 for new residents of the then-new Tuscawilla community. The document offers a unique snapshot of what living in Tuscawilla was like during its earliest days, capturing the vision, planning, and optimism that shaped the community from the very beginning. It speaks to everything from neighborhood design and amenities to schools and services that were still on the horizon, many of which residents today may take for granted.

Due to space limitations, only the first page of this historical document could be published in this issue. We encourage readers to visit Tuscawilla.org, where the full seven-page document is available to read in its entirety. It is a compelling reminder of how thoughtfully Tuscawilla was planned and how many of the founding principles outlined more than 50 years ago continue to guide our community today. This article marks the beginning of an ongoing effort to share more stories, documents, and insights into Tuscawilla's past in future issues, helping us better understand where we came from and our responsibility to protect what makes this community so special.

As you read through this issue, we encourage you to consider the value of THOA membership. Annual dues help fund community programs, support advocacy efforts, preserve neighborhood character, and give Tuscawilla a strong, unified voice. Membership is not just about benefits; it is about belonging, participation, and investing in the future of our community.

Thank you for being part of Tuscawilla. Together, we honor our past, support our present, and shape a future we can all be proud of.

HAPPY
Valentine's Day

PRESIDENTS DAY: A LOOK BACK WITH A SMILE

Presidents Day arrives each February as a gentle reminder that the history of our country is not only shaped by great moments and big decisions, but also by very human people. While the holiday is often associated with long weekends and retail sales, its origins tell a more thoughtful story.

The holiday began as a celebration of George Washington's birthday, observed shortly after his passing in 1799. Washington was widely admired not just for leading a young nation, but for stepping away from power when he could have held onto it. Over time, Abraham Lincoln's birthday was also recognized in many states, honoring a president who guided the nation through its most difficult chapter. Eventually, these observances were combined into what we now know as Presidents Day, a time to reflect on leadership across generations.

What makes Presidents Day unique is that it does not honor a single person, but the office itself and the long line of individuals who have served. Some presidents are remembered for historic achievements, others for quiet steadiness during uncertain times, and a few for colorful personalities that still show up in history books. Together, they tell the story of a nation constantly learning, growing, and occasionally arguing with itself along the way.

There is also something refreshingly relatable about presidential history. Many presidents faced setbacks, made mistakes, and learned on the job. Several began their lives in modest circumstances, reminding us that leadership does not follow just one path. These stories help bring history down from the pedestal and make it easier to connect with.

For communities like Tuscawilla, Presidents Day is less about politics and more about perspective. It is a moment to appreciate the continuity of our democratic system and the shared civic traditions that connect neighbors, regardless of background or viewpoint. It also serves as a reminder that leadership, at every level, is ultimately about service and responsibility.

So whether Presidents Day finds you enjoying a quiet day at home, strolling through the neighborhood, or sharing a conversation with friends, it offers a chance to pause and reflect. Our history is filled with lessons, some serious, some inspiring, and a few that make us smile. That balance may be exactly what makes the story of our nation endure.

VALENTINE'S DAY IN TUSCAWILLA: CELEBRATING ALL THE WAYS WE CARE

Valentine's Day often arrives wrapped in red and pink, with store shelves full of cards, candy, and flowers. While the holiday is traditionally associated with romance, it has grown into something broader and more meaningful. At its heart, Valentine's Day is really about connection, kindness, and taking a moment to appreciate the people and places that matter most to us.

The holiday traces its roots back centuries, tied to legends of Saint Valentine and early traditions of expressing affection through handwritten notes. Over time, those small gestures evolved into cards, chocolates, and flowers, but the idea remains the same. It is a reminder to pause in our busy lives and say, "You matter."

Here in Tuscawilla, Valentine's Day can take many forms. It might be a quiet walk through the neighborhood, a wave to a familiar face, or sharing a meal with family or friends. It is just as much about long time neighbors as it is about sweethearts. Acts of kindness, both big and small, are what truly give the day its meaning.

There is also something uniquely comforting about celebrating Valentine's Day close to home. Our community is built on relationships, from friendly conversations on front porches to neighbors lending a helping hand when it is needed most. These everyday moments of care often go unnoticed, yet they are the foundation of what makes Tuscawilla feel like home.

Valentine's Day is also a good reminder that love shows up in many ways. It can be found in friendships, family bonds, shared laughter, and even in the pride we feel for our community. Sometimes it looks like a handwritten note. Other times it is simply showing up for one another.

So whether your Valentine's Day includes a special dinner, a box of chocolates, or just a quiet moment of appreciation, it offers an opportunity to reflect on what connects us. In Tuscawilla, those connections are all around us, woven into daily life. And that may be the sweetest part of the holiday of all.

RECOGNIZING KIM COBURN

Tuscawilla is a stronger, more connected community because of residents like Kim Coburn. Pictured here, Kurt Mierickie, President of the Tuscawilla Home Owners Association, recognizes Kim for her many years of dedicated service to both Tuscawilla and the City of Winter Springs. A longtime resident, respected realtor, community volunteer, and valued member of the THOA Board of Directors, Kim has consistently given her time, energy, and expertise to improve the quality of life for her neighbors. Her commitment reflects the very best of community spirit through quiet leadership, steady service, and a genuine love for the place she calls home. Tuscawilla is grateful for all she has done.

A PROUD TRADITION: THE SCOTTISH HIGHLAND GAMES AT CENTRAL WINDS PARK

Central Winds Park once again came alive with the sights, sounds, and spirit of the Scottish Highland Games, marking the 48th year of this beloved tradition. What began nearly five decades ago has grown into the largest annual event in Seminole County, drawing visitors from across Central Florida and beyond to celebrate heritage, athleticism, music, and community.

For one unforgettable weekend, Central Winds Park transformed into a vibrant gathering place filled with the rhythmic beat of bagpipes, the flash of tartan, and the cheers of spectators lining the fields. From the opening ceremonies to the final competitions, the Games showcased time honored traditions while welcoming newcomers of all ages.

At the heart of the Highland Games are the athletic events that never fail to impress. Watching competitors test their strength and skill in events like the caber toss, hammer throw, and stone put is both awe inspiring and entertaining. These events are rooted in centuries old Scottish traditions and remain a powerful connection to the past, even as they captivate modern audiences.

Music and dance added to the festival atmosphere throughout the weekend. Bagpipe bands filled the park with unmistakable melodies, while Highland dancers brought precision, energy, and grace to the stage. Clan tents, cultural exhibits, and vendors offered opportunities to learn more about Scottish history and traditions, making the Games as educational as they were festive.

Of course, no Highland Games would be complete without food, refreshments, and friendly conversation. Families, longtime attendees, and first time visitors alike shared laughter, stories, and moments that turn an event into a lasting memory. For many, attending the Games has become an annual tradition, passed down through generations.

Beyond the competitions and performances, the Scottish Highland Games are another example of the great community we are all a part of. The event reflects the pride, volunteer spirit, and hospitality that define Winter Springs and Seminole County. The continued success of the Games is a testament to the dedication of organizers, volunteers, sponsors, and community partners who work year round to make the event possible.

As these photos show, the Scottish Highland Games are more than just an event. They are a source of pride for our city and a reminder of how Central Winds Park brings people together. After 48 years, this remarkable tradition continues to grow, and we look forward to many more years of memories made right here in Winter Springs.

A SNAPSHOT OF TUSCAWILLA'S BEGINNINGS: LIFE IN A NEW COMMUNITY, 1972

The picture shown is the first page of a seven-page historical document from 1972 that offers a remarkable snapshot of Tuscawilla at its very beginning. Originally prepared to welcome new residents to what was then a brand-new country club community, the document captures the growing pains, hopes, and practical realities of a neighborhood that at the time consisted of just 30 households and has since grown to nearly 4,600 families. Due to space limitations in this issue of Tuscawilla Today, only this first page is included here. Residents who would like to read the complete seven-page document are encouraged to visit www.Tuscawilla.org, where it is available in full.

The document was produced by the Winter Springs Development Homeowners' Association, the original name of what we now know as the Tuscawilla Homeowners Association. That name reflects a pivotal moment in local history. In the early 1970s, the City of North Orlando officially changed its name to Winter Springs. At the same time, the City annexed the developing country club community that had originally been called Winter Springs. With the City adopting that name, the community itself chose a new identity: Tuscawilla Country Club. This change helped avoid confusion for residents, merchants, delivery services, and emergency responders, and it firmly established the name that continues today.

Importantly, annexation did not apply uniformly. Unit One, located on the western end of Dyson Drive near Tuskawilla Road, was not annexed into the City of Winter Springs at that time and remains outside the city limits to this day. The document makes clear that this distinction carried significant implications, particularly when it came to public safety services.

The section on fire protection, detailed on page two, is especially striking when viewed through a modern lens. For residents within the city limits, fire protection was provided by the then-young Winter Springs Fire Department. At the time, it consisted of a volunteer unit of 13 firefighters and a fire chief. Volunteers received approximately 200 hours of training, and equipment included two pumper ladder trucks and two tank wagons with pumps. No paid firefighters were yet in place, though the City anticipated hiring a chief and four paid firefighters by the end of 1974.

For Unit One residents, the situation was far more sobering. Fire protection was provided by the Seminole-Goldenrod Fire District, a 15-member volunteer unit located on Red Bug Lake Road. The document plainly warns that if residents failed to pay a $10 annual fire fee in advance, the department would not respond to a house fire. This was before the formation of the Seminole County Fire Department, and nonpayment meant no service—an almost unimaginable policy by today's standards.

The Winter Springs Police Department was also in its infancy. At the time, the department consisted of one chief, five patrolmen, two clerks and dispatchers, and three state-subsidized police cadets. Equipment was limited to two patrol cars, with a third expected. Despite its small size, the department provided 24-hour coverage, ensuring at least one officer was on duty at all times, with additional coverage during critical hours. Plans were already underway to expand staffing and establish a substation in the Tuscawilla area as growth continued.

The document also includes a listing of area schools, another reminder of how early this chapter of Tuscawilla's story truly was. Several schools that today are central to our community had not yet been built, including Rainbow Elementary, Keith Elementary, Indian Trails Middle School, and Winter Springs High School. At the time, families were directed to schools outside what we now consider Winter Springs, underscoring how development, infrastructure, and public services were still catching up to the community's vision.

Beyond public safety and schools, the document touches on water quality, mail delivery, zoning, taxes, recreation, and even mosquito control. It highlights early efforts to preserve the estate-like character of the community, oppose high-rise development, improve drainage, slow traffic, and advocate for responsible growth—issues that remain familiar to residents today.

More than a historical artifact, this 1972 guide tells the story of a young community finding its footing through cooperation, advocacy, and civic involvement. While Tuscawilla has grown dramatically over the past five decades, the spirit reflected in these pages—neighbors working together to protect their community and shape its future—remains a defining part of who we are today.

CITY WARNS OF AVIAN INFLUENZA AT TORCASO PARK

During the week of January 26, 2026, City staff discovered several deceased ducks at Torcaso Park. Parks staff immediately contacted the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) and Seminole County Animal Services. Following an investigation, the birds tested positive for Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza (HPAI).

Under the guidance of FWC and Seminole County Animal Services, City staff began proper disposal of the deceased birds and sanitization of affected areas to help prevent further spread. The City has since been advised that potential outbreaks have occurred in other communities within the county.

While the risk of transmission to humans remains low, health officials recommend basic precautions, including avoiding contact with sick or deceased birds, not handling wildlife without protection, keeping pets away from affected areas, and practicing good hygiene such as frequent handwashing. Anyone who has contact with birds and later experiences flu-like symptoms should contact a healthcare provider as a precaution.

FWC recommends allowing the Avian Influenza to run its course, noting that some birds may develop immunity. Officials estimate the infection may dissipate within approximately one month. The City will continue to monitor the situation, report any new findings to FWC, disinfect affected areas, and keep residents informed. The safety of residents and staff, along with the protection of local wildlife, remains a top priority.
