DESIGN

Our design process is inspired by the latest trends and the evolving ways that people live.

We draw inspiration from a variety of sources, from the beauty of nature's organic forms, the elegance of wildlife to the minimalist aesthetics of modern art.

Our goal is to create glassware that goes beyond traditional expectations. We want to make glassware that is not only visually stunning & functional, but also meaningful.

Each piece tells a story of innovation, respect for the environment and a celebration to the art of living well.

CRAFTSMANSHIP

Our glassware is designed in our London studio and made by highly skilled artisans who use both traditional mouth-blown techniques along with high-end machined processes.

This allows us to push the limits of what the raw material has to offer, with designs that are bold & daring, which are sure to turn heads.

We consider each detail, from the weight and balance of a wine glass to the ergonomic design of a cocktail glass, ensuring every item not only looks great, but feels right in the hand.

We conduct meticulous quality control to ensure each piece meets the highest standards and is made to last.

SUSTAINABILITY

Sustainability is at the heart of our design process. As we navigate a world increasingly driven by sustainability, we tend to the increased demand in moving away from plastics.

Unlike plastic, glass is non-toxic and doesn't contain harmful chemicals such as BPA & phthalates. Our glassware doesn't absorb flavours or odours, ensuring that beverages retain their original taste and quality.

We prioritise the use of recycled glass and ensure we work with manufacturers that are environmentally conscious.

All our glassware is 100% recyclable, which reduces the need for new raw materials and helps decrease landfill waste.

We also ensure that our packaging is recyclable where possible and that the materials used have been made from recycled materials.

By creating thoughtfully designed products, we encourage individuals to embrace sustainable choices and can feel at ease when purchasing any of our products.
