At the core of Dr. Lauren Harper's work you can always identify an uncompromising yet approachable intent for culture change.

She effortlessly creates safety in open dialogue and evaluates client needs with an authentic desire for improvement.

Dr. Lauren Harper is a licensed psychologist specializing in Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) and workforce wellness. She obtained a Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology and a Qualitative Research certificate, both from the University of Georgia.

Since moving to Oregon Dr. Harper's work has expanded beyond direct patient care to collaborating with stakeholders, supervising resources, as well as translating trends from survey data into new DEI initiatives. She is an experienced facilitator for teams experiencing distressing professional events. She has also designed mental health and well-being retreats as well as group workshops for employee teams.

Dr. Harper shows true dedication to leadership by example through her service on diversity committees and task forces. During her tenure at Providence she served as the chair for the Anti-Racism Taskforce Steering Committee within Providence Portland's Internal Medicine Residency Program, the Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Committee for Providence Health and Services' behavioral health department, and the Diversity Workgroup inside Providence Medical Group's psychology team.

As a Georgia native, she enjoys exploring all of Oregon's beautiful landscape, including Portland's many wonderful food and wine options.
