SECTION 1: Destruction of Federal Election Records by Skagit County Election officials

Background

In the months following the November 3, 2020 election, multiple records requests were submitted to the Skagit County Records office for election results, communications, videos, reports, and other data critical to performing an Audit of how the election was managed by County officials.

Among the many different records requested, it is believed that the request to examine video surveillance of in-person voter registration, ballot printing, and county election staff activities on and after Election Day would resolve multiple concerns raised by irregularities found in voter data described in subsequent sections of this report.

Very specifically, it was expected that video surveillance of the election office lobby work area would provide critical video confirmation of suspected fraud however, in response to related records request the County records office replied that they had been informed by the Auditors office there was no lobby video camera [1]. Since it was previously known that the County Auditor had used video surveillance to monitor the election ballot process and in fact refused to allow in person observers for the election, it seemed very unlikely that video of the desired area did exist so I requested a mapping of the auditor's cameras [1]. While my camera mapping request went unanswered, as found in the attached email correspondence I was informed by the records office that footage from other cameras was available that may resolve my request and an in-person inspection was scheduled [1].

On February 3, 2021 I performed an in-person inspection of the video footage the Auditor's office had made available to the County records office in Mount Vernon but was disappointed to find that the footage did not show the lobby area I was interested in. In hopes of better understanding the footage that did exist, I and the County records manager made an in-person inspection of the auditor's office entrance and were shocked to quickly identify a camera directed exactly where one would be expected, towards the lobby area. Subsequently, the County records representative indicated she would follow-up with the auditor and an afternoon meeting was scheduled to review the footage from the newly discovered camera later identified as Camera 61.

Upon my return to the County records office to inspect the newly discovered Camera 61 footage, I found myself in a video conference with the County Auditor Sandy Perkins and Election Manager Gabrielle Clay who stated all footage from the desired Camera 61 had been deleted. As documented in the attached summary meeting notes [2], I was informed that the footage of the lobby area had been deleted due to it being of low quality and while I did not indicate such in the meeting notes, the Auditors office indicated it was standard to delete footage after 30 days.

Understandably, having been first told there was no camera, then finding that there was a camera but that the camera footage was deleted has caused me to be skeptical of the Auditors responses so following the meeting I prepared meeting notes that I submitted directly to Auditor Perkins along with follow-up questions that have yet to be responded to [3]. Notably, following our video meeting the Auditor has refused all phone calls and it has been stated in records that she has been coordinating with legal counsel regarding my inquiry.

Findings

Following the County Auditors admissions that surveillance camera footage from the November 3, 2020 election did exist but has been destroyed, an investigation into Skagit County records was performed that has found the following;

1. The deleted video footage from camera 61 was one of multiple cameras contracted in June 2020 intended to increase security at the County election facility [4].
2. Camera 61 was found to be just one of the cameras at the critical lobby location that would have been considered responsive to the original January 4th records request however only camera 61 was acknowledged as existing in response to the records request [5].
3. Records indicate there were twelve cameras operational during the election beginning in mid-October [4].
4. Documentation from the Office of Secretary of State to Auditor Perkins confirms that prior to the video surveillance files being deleted, Auditor Perkins and multiple County Election officials were made aware there was a 22 month federal retention requirement for election video surveillance data [6]
5. Records indicate the Auditors office directed the deletion of five election camera video files in their entirety including cameras; 37, 58, 60, 61, and 62 [7].
6. The deleted video files provide the only video surveillance of the entrance and front working area to the election office after ballots enter the office but before they are viewable to the remaining surveillance cameras in the back rooms increasing the opportunity for undocumented ballot tampering by election officials [4].
7. Records indicate County employees outside the Election office expressed concern regarding the Auditor deviating from County video handling policy [8].
8. Of the saved seven video camera data files that still remain, weeks of recordings of ballot processing beginning in mid-October have also been found to have been deleted [7].

Conclusion

Based upon the events and findings as described above, adequate evidence exists to support the concern that federal election records for the November 3, 2020 election have been knowingly destroyed in violation of 52 USC and that multiple Skagit County Officials have participated.

SECTION 2: Evidence of Skagit County Voter Ballot Fraud

Background

Following the November 3, 2020 election and at the request of multiple residents of Skagit County, I began an independent audit of Skagit County's election results.

Although there are many aspects of the audit that will take months to complete, enough evidence has been gathered to issue the first formal audit findings as found below.

Findings

Utilizing the Comma Separated Value (CSV) election data files publicly available through the Washington Secretary of State for the November 3, 2020 election results, a file for all of the 90,590 Skagit County voters was prepared and used for the audit evaluation.

Among the many potential audit items considered for this evaluations large data group was the evaluation for statistically improbable data sequences. Unfortunately, with each of the over 90,590 voters having sixteen different categories of data listed in the state issued voter information tables, it is a difficult task to find the kind of sequence that raises flags but not impossible.

After a significant number of attempts, a statistically improbable sequence has been found in the Skagit County voter data that cannot occur naturally in an election and that is believed to prove manipulation of Skagit County's election did occur.

First, it is critical to understand recent changes to the state registration and ballot processing system that did not exist prior to 2019. Specifically, the County process to create ballots is now tied directly to the state database and as part of a new centralized database when a voter's ballot is approved to be printed as a new or replacement ballot, the state system timestamps the hour and minute of ballot generation creating a unique record for each occurrence.

Also, the state ballot process allows the voter themselves to access the state system through votewa.gov and change or print a ballot but only until the last minute of the election at 8:00 PM on election night. After 8:00 PM there is only one way to access the state ballot system that will create a new timestamp and that is through a secret on-line portal that the Office of Secretary of State provides to Election Officials with the expectation that voters may be in line for a ballot before 8:00 PM and in accordance with state law are entitled to have a ballot printed so they can vote.

Next, using the state timestamp data for each county, an analysis can be performed to understand on a statewide basis, the magnitude of each counties late voting as shown in Exhibit 2.

EXHIBIT 2 – 2019 and 2020 Late Voter Analysis

Notably, upon review of the county by county comparison of late timestamp data, Skagit County is among the highest rates of late time stamps in the state ranking it 2nd on per voter basis with over 340 instances occurring after the close of the election at 8:00 PM. Only following Snohomish County who had over three thousand instances ranked higher on late ballot time stamps.

Also recognizable in Exhibit 2 is that for an unknown reason the Secretary of State has not made all data available for many counties preventing similar comparisons.

Although the timestamp analysis is a likely indicator of manipulation of voter ballots, an additional and more significant anomaly was also found that on its own, would raise manipulation concerns but more astoundingly, it was found to have also correlated with the timestamp irregularity.

As shown in the below Exhibits 3 and 4, a review of Skagit County data has found that on four separate occasions, ballot record timestamps aligned in sequence, with alphabetical groups of 192 ballots on the last day and hours of ballot processing by the Skagit County election department.

EXHIBIT 4 – 2020 Late Voter Analysis Sequentially
Timed and Alphabetical

After identifying the voter ballot patterns and understanding that Election Officials were likely involved, video records were requested from the County however, as previously described, the requested video files have been deleted, election officials are cording with legal counsel, and cooperation gathering additional evidence is unlikely.

Conclusion

Based upon the events and findings as described above, adequate evidence exists to support the concern that during the November 3, 2020 Skagit County Election, significant ballot manipulation occurred in violation of 52 USC.
