UNL INSIDE SCOOP

Good Oral Health May Help Protect Against Various Diseases

Studies show that people who have poor oral health (such as gum disease or tooth loss) have higher rates of cardiovascular problems, such as heart attack or stroke, than people with good oral health. In addition, according to a 2019 study in Science Advances, the bacteria that cause gingivitis may be connected to Alzheimer's disease.¹

Uninsured Americans are:

twice as unhappy about their teeth as those who are insured²

Uninsured adults are:

2x as likely to have one to three untreated cavities³

3x

Three times as likely to have four or more untreated cavities as adults with private insurance³
