

Happy Man

The man over there is a happy old man
With a smile, and a wink, and a wave
That will make you feel good on your worst day
Glad to be who you are anywhere

He sits on the stool at the end of the counter
Drinking coffee as thick as it comes
And he greets all the people to the Hummingbird Grill
And he thinks about all that he's done

He talks once in a while, 'bout the life he had
The loves that he's shared and the jobs that weren't bad
Life's too short, you better go with the heart
Or the next thing you know... You'll be a happy man too

Happy Man, with a broken heart
How can it be so, please I'd like to know
Happy Man, Oh you never got a chance
It don't seem right I know, why don't you let it show

Keeps it all inside, the man is full of pride
I know that can't ease his pain
The warmth he makes us feel is just a show until
He leaves this place to start his life again

He talks once in a while, 'bout the life he had
The loves that he's shared and the jobs that weren't bad
Life's too short, you better go with the heart
Or the next thing you know... You'll be a happy man too

Happy Man, with a broken heart
How can it be so, please I'd like to know
Happy Man, Oh you never got a chance
It don't seem right I know, why don't you let it show
