To Whom It May Concern,

It is my pleasure to strongly recommend Tirre Logston for a teaching position. Tirre is an outstanding educator whose expertise, creativity, and dedication have made a profound impact at Jewett Elementary. She has a deep understanding of education and excels at designing engaging, hands-on learning experiences for students across K–5.

She built and leads Jewett's STEM Lab—an integrated, school-wide program she developed from the ground up—where students visit weekly to engage in project-based learning. She designs the curriculum, selects and adapts materials, and implements interdisciplinary projects that spark curiosity, encourage critical thinking, and promote problem-solving skills. She also supports multilingual learners in our two-way immersion program by creating clear, accessible lessons tailored to diverse learning needs. Creative, energetic, and visionary, she has cultivated a thriving classroom community where every student feels seen, valued, and empowered to succeed.

In addition to her instructional expertise, Tirre is highly skilled with technology and provides essential support for our building's tech needs, including managing Chromebooks, Active Panels, and substitute teacher technical assistance. She frequently assists colleagues with integrating digital tools into their instruction, helping teachers enhance student engagement and learning outcomes.

Tirre's ability to design inquiry-based, engaging learning experiences while maintaining high expectations for all students reflects her deep understanding of education and her unwavering commitment to student growth. Her combination of STEM leadership, instructional skill, and dedication to both students and colleagues make her an exceptional candidate for any teaching role.

Sincerely,

Charissa Spranger
