The NRA Foundation Awards a community grant to the Fin and Feather Club of Mason County

Scottville, Michigan —Scottville, Michigan — The NRA Foundation has awarded the Fin and Feather Club of Mason County a community grant to enhance educational programming focused on firearm safety, hunting, and marksmanship.

This funding will directly benefit a range of community-focused initiatives designed to promote safety, responsibility, and skill development. Planned programs include elementary-level gun accident prevention education, ongoing hunter safety courses, youth and women’s firearm education classes, and adult crime prevention training.

Throughout the year, the Fin & Feather Club will offer instruction through established programs such as the Eddie Eagle GunSafe Program, Hunter Safety Education, women’s firearm training opportunities including the personal safety initiative Refuse To Be A Victim. These programs are designed to provide a safe, structured environment to educate and empower participants of all ages.

In addition to skill-building, these initiatives aim to support parents and community groups in addressing firearm safety with children and to enhance personal safety awareness for adults. Collectively, these efforts strengthen community knowledge and promote responsible firearm ownership.

The Fin & Feather Club offers a variety of ongoing programs, including Hunter Safety Education courses, women’s pistol classes, concealed carry training, and new program offerings such as Women on Target. These initiatives reflect the club’s continued commitment to growing youth and women’s participation in shooting sports and safety education.
