CAMP VERDE:

West Clear Creek (Camp Verde). Rating C/B. 6-10 mile hike, out and back with an elevation gain of 700-1000 ft. The C level will cross the stream three times each way, stopping for a break and return to starting point. The B level keeps going to a fourth crossing. You will get wet – the stream is 30 ft wide by 24-30 inches deep. Dress accordingly. Suggest extra pair of shoes/boots or waterproof hiking boots. Also, it's helpful to have a hiking stick in order to keep your balance when crossing stream. If you continue on past the third crossing you will come to the fourth and last crossing at about the 5 mi. mark. It's a rough dirt road for the last five miles. Accessible by high clearance vehicles.

Restroom at the trailhead. No park fee. Driving distance is 224 miles RT. [SCG=8.0/340/2.8].

CHIRICAHUA MOUNTAINS:

Heart of the Rocks Trail (Chiricahua Mountains). Rating C. Trail offers spectacular views of balanced rocks, spires and pinnacles unlike our typical hikes. These are partially wooded trails high in the park. The elevation change is approx. 500 ft. Take adequate water and bring warm clothing as we had snow and cold temperatures in May some years. Park fee: $4.00 per vehicle, free with Golden Age Pass. Suggest a stop at the nearby Faraway Ranch, a pioneer homestead and later working cattle and guest ranch. Suggest an overnight stay at either the Best Western Plaza Inn, 1100 W. Rex Allan Dr., Wilcox, AZ (520) 384-3556 or for even more fun with a group: the SunGlow Guest Ranch, HCR 1 Box 385, Turkey Creek Rd., Pearce, AZ 85625. (520) 824-3334. <http://pchikingclub.smugmug.com/PCHCOvernighHikes/Chiricahua-Trip-324-3262015/Chiricahua-C-Hike-Little/>

Go south on highway 186 from Wilcox at the sign for Chiricahua National Monument. Keep driving south on highway 186 for about 15 miles until a 'T' in the road where 186 goes east towards the monument (it is marked with another sign). Continue east on 186 just a few miles straight into the monument. Pay $5 at the entrance to the monument (and pick up a map) and continue for about 1.5 miles to the Visitor Center. (Or take the drive another few miles up to the end and back for some nice views if you like - it's only a few miles). Park in the lot at the Visitor Center and jump on the Rhyolite Canyon Trail at the far end of the lot or go up to Massai Point and take the Echo Park Trail.

DUGAS

Nelson (#159), Willow Springs (#12,), Verde Rim (#161), and Pine Mountain (#14) Loop (Pine Mountain, near Dugas). Rating B. This is a picturesque 10.5 mile out, loop, and back hike with an elevation gain of 1,720 ft. Hiking in a forested area. Park at the end of FR 68 in the campground. There are some outhouses in the campground. The Nelson Trailhead is directly across the stream to the east. Hike 2.5 miles east on Nelson Trail to Willow Springs/Pine Mountain Trail intersect. Suggest hiking the "loop" clockwise because of magnificent views as you descend off of Pine Mountain. Therefore, take the Willow Springs Trail. You will hike to a gradual ascent, about 2.5 miles to the intersection with the Pine Mountain Trail. Go right. After about ¼ mile of a fairly steep ascent you will see a sign that directs you to the left and the top of Pine Mountain. Will reach the top in about 100 yards. There is an ammo box with writing material to evidence you were there. There are great views of Verde Valley, etc. Return to trail and continue on the Pine Mountain Trail. In about ½ mile you will reach a heavily burned out forest area - a result of a 1989 fire. Trail goes abruptly down the mountain. Signage is good and you will intersect other trails but be sure to stay on Pine Mountain Trail. As you descend the mountain trail goes southwest and then starts north and intersects the Nelson Trail for return to parking area. The last 20 miles of road are dirt, with a stream to drive through in Dugas (high clearance will work if road is dry). There is no park fee. No restrooms. Driving distance is approx 200 miles RT.

FOUR PEAKS WILDERNESS (MAZATZAL MOUNTAINS):

Ballantine/Pine Creek Loop Trails (Mazatzal Wilderness). Rating B/C. This is a 6-7 mile in and out hike with an elevation change of 800 to 1300 feet that goes to Boulder Flat (approx. 3 miles from the parking lot). The North (left) direction on the Pine Creek trail is fairly flat around a ridge, while the South (right) direction is fairly steep going over the ridge. Halfway around in either direction is the beginning of the Ballantine trail. The Ballantine trail is primarily a trail through an area of large rocks and boulders, including a ridgeline of red rocks. With a little imagination, you can see numerous images in the formations, including a giant chair made of several rocks. There is no park entrance fee and no facilities at the trailhead. Driving distance is approx. 170 miles RT.

Brown's Peak (Four Peaks Wilderness). Rating A. Browns Peak is located in the Four Peaks Wilderness of the Mazatzal Mountains and is the highest point in Maricopa county, topping out at 7,657 ft. The total length is just over 5 miles with a total elevation gain of just under 2,000 ft. The first 2-1/4 miles is a moderate hike (level B/C) to the saddle, climbing just under 1,100 ft. From there, however, the last half mile is a very steep climb up a chute with very loose rock for an additional 900 ft. of gain (level B+/A). There is an exposed class 4 scramble near the summit as well as a couple of short class 3 climbs near the top of the chute. Once reaching the top you will be rewarded with beautiful views of Roosevelt Lake and much of the Tonto National Forest. No restrooms at the trailhead. No park Fee. Tonto Natural Bridge + Fossil Creek Trail (Strawberry), Rating C. A pair of short hikes totaling about 5 miles (under 3 for NB and 2.4 for FC) with an elevation gain of about 600 ft. The bridge is a beautiful 180' high, 150' wide, 400' long natural travertine bridge with lots of colors in the rocks. With a little climbing, you can cross right under it, or go up and around to see it from the opposite side. There are several places where you have to scamper over large boulders, but it's more hiking than climbing. Pima Canyon Trail (Tucson). Rating B. This hike is 8 miles round trip, with 2,000 feet in elevation change. Beginning in the desert scrub at the base of the Catalinas, the Pima Canyon Trail leaves the parking lot (2,900 feet) and travels gently uphill for a short distance. Saguaros are abundant on the hillside, and in warmer months, may have flowers in bloom. Turning back to the southwest reveals gorgeous views of West Tucson, providing an excellent opportunity for photos. Shortly thereafter, the trail drops down into Pima Canyon, and winds across a drainage numerous times as the vegetation occasionally transitions into riparian (streamside) habitat. After three miles of hiking, you will arrive at the Pima Canyon Dam (3,700 feet), where two small, bowl-shaped depressions in a large slab of rock signify the imprints of the Hohokam Indians, whose women used the rock to grind mesquite beans over 1,000 years ago. Romero Canyon Trail (Catalina Mountains). Rating B. A desert canyon stream and great views of Pusch Ridge and the Santa Catalina Mountains await you along this popular trail. The hike starts in Catalina State Park and uses scenic Romero Canyon as an access route into the Pusch Ridge Wilderness. Even along its early stretches, this trail offers good views of the Santa Catalina Mountains and of Cathedral Rock towering over the pinnacles of Pusch Ridge as well as sweeping views of the city.

The climb toward Romero Pass includes several sections of steep switchbacks, some of which are rocky and rutted. In places, the trail is marked with cairns to distinguish it from the maze of opportunistic pathways that branch off to random destinations. As you make your way toward the pass, however, broad vistas continue to increase in drama and occasional sightings of desert bighorn sheep add an extra element of excitement to an already rewarding hike.

After 3.9 miles and climbing 1,500 ft we will come to Romero Pass where there are a number of trails to choose from. Connecting trails provide routes to the summit of Mt. Lemmon, to the Wilderness of Rock area, and to the scenic Sabino Basin and Sabino Canyon area to the south and east. Cathedral Rock Trail #26, a rugged and difficult route, provides access from Romero Pass to all the Front Range trails. The State Park fee of $6.00 per car.
