Greetings, Brethren,

As another month begins, we extend a warm and fraternal welcome to all members of our lodge. Whether you are a longtime Mason or a newly raised Brother, your presence, participation, and fellowship are what make our lodge strong and vibrant.

We encourage every Brother to join us for our monthly activities and meetings. Our Executive Committee Meeting is held on the Tuesday preceding our Stated Meeting at 7:00 PM EST. These meetings provide an opportunity for lodge leadership and interested members to discuss upcoming events, lodge business, charitable efforts, and plans for the future of our fraternity.

Our Stated Meeting is held on the first Thursday of each month. The evening begins with a meal and fellowship at 6:30 PM EST, followed by our lodge meeting at 7:30 PM EST. These gatherings offer more than just the conduct of lodge business, they provide an opportunity to reconnect with Brothers, share experiences, strengthen friendships, and continue the work of Freemasonry together.

In a world that often moves too quickly, the lodge remains a place where men of good character can gather in harmony, support one another, and work toward the betterment of themselves, their families, and their communities. Your attendance not only enriches your own Masonic journey but also strengthens the bonds that unite us as Brothers.

We look forward to seeing familiar faces and welcoming those who may not have attended recently. If you know of a Brother who has been absent, consider reaching out with a kind word and an invitation to join us. A simple phone call or message can make a meaningful difference.

Thank you for your continued dedication to our lodge and to the principles of Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. May we all continue to labor together in friendship, unity, and purpose.

We hope to see you at our next meeting!

“Light at Its Zenith: The Masonic Meaning of June and the Feast of St. John the Baptist”

Each month in the Masonic year carries its own lessons if we are attentive to the symbolism of time, nature, and tradition. June, in particular, stands as one of the most meaningful months in the Masonic calendar, not because of any single event in secular life, but because of what it represents in the natural cycle of light and darkness, and in our ancient Craft observances. June brings us to the time of the summer solstice, the point at which light reaches its greatest duration in the Northern Hemisphere. Day overcomes night in its longest triumph. The sun, in symbolic terms, stands at its highest station. For the operative mason of old, this was a time of full productivity—quarries were active, construction was at its peak, and labor was carried out under the longest stretch of usable daylight. But for the speculative Mason, this moment is not merely agricultural or practical—it is deeply symbolic. The Solstice as a Masonic Symbol Freemasonry has always used light as one of its central symbols. We are initiated, passed, and raised in search of “more light.” That light is not merely intellectual—it is moral, spiritual, and philosophical illumination. The summer solstice reminds us of a profound truth: light, when it reaches its height, also begins its quiet decline. From the very moment of greatest light, darkness slowly begins to return. This is not presented in Masonry as a pessimistic idea, but rather as a teaching about balance and impermanence. Human experience itself is cyclical. Our strength, our clarity, and our certainty all have seasons. The solstice teaches us humility even in times of abundance. In the Indiana Masonic tradition and monitorial teachings, light is consistently associated with knowledge, virtue, and divine truth. But it is never treated as something we possess fully. It is always something we are still approaching. Thus, June reminds the Mason of a simple but enduring lesson: Even at the height of illumination, we are still students of the Light.

The Feast of St. John the Baptist

Closely connected to this seasonal symbolism is one of the oldest observances in Freemasonry: the Feast of St. John the Baptist, traditionally celebrated around June 24. St. John the Baptist has long been honored in Masonic tradition as a patron of the Craft, along with St. John the Evangelist, whose feast occurs in December. These two figures are not worshipped in Masonry, nor are they objects of sectarian devotion. Rather, they serve as symbolic representations of the two great turning points of the solar year:

- St. John the Baptist (June) – the summer solstice, the height of light
- St. John the Evangelist (December) – the winter solstice, the return of light

Together, they form a symbolic axis around which the Masonic year turns. St. John the Baptist, as described in traditional accounts, was a figure of moral courage, simplicity, and truth. He is often associated with preparation—the one who prepares the way. In that sense, he is deeply Masonic. He represents the disciplined life, the clearing away of excess, and the readiness to receive higher truth. For the Mason, his example is not about doctrine, but about character. He calls us to examine ourselves, to remove what is unnecessary, and to prepare the way for greater understanding. Masonry and the Balance of Light If we consider both the solstice and the symbolism of St. John the Baptist, we begin to see a unified

Lesson: Masonry teaches balance in all things.

We are not taught to dwell permanently in darkness or in excessive light. Instead, we are taught to recognize both, and to understand their place in the human journey. The Entered Apprentice is placed in darkness. The newly raised Master Mason is brought into light. But neither condition is final. The Master Mason, though “raised,” is still instructed to seek further light. In this way, Masonry avoids two errors:

1. The error of despair in darkness
2. The error of pride in illumination

June, at the height of light, warns us against the second. Moral Application for the Lodge Brethren, symbolism only has value if it changes how we live. What then does the light of June ask of us? First, it calls us to self-examination in times of success. Just as the sun begins to decline even at its peak, so too can moral complacency begin even in times of achievement. A Lodge that is strong today must still guard its future. Second, it calls us to gratitude without pride. The abundance of light is not earned by man; it is received. Likewise, the blessings of Masonry—brotherhood, instruction, and moral development are not possessions, but trusts. Third, it calls us to service while opportunity is greatest. Just as ancient builders used long summer days to accomplish great works, so too must Masons use periods of strength—personal or institutional—to build what will endure. That “building” is not merely physical. It is the building of character, the strengthening of the Lodge, and the extension of Masonic light into the community.

Connection to Masonic Tradition

The Indiana Masonic tradition, as reflected in its monitorial teachings and constitutional structure, consistently emphasizes order, regularity, and the preservation of landmarks. Within that framework, education plays a central role. Masonic education is not secondary, it is essential. Without understanding, ritual becomes repetition rather than revelation. June, with its symbolism of illumination, is an ideal month to renew our commitment to learning the meaning behind the work we perform. A Lodge that understands its symbolism will always be stronger than one that merely performs its ceremonies.

Closing Reflection

Brethren, as we move through this season of greatest light, we are reminded that every summit is also a turning point. The sun does not remain fixed at its height, and neither do human conditions. The lesson of June is not to cling to light, but to understand it. Not to assume permanence in any condition, but to use each condition wisely. If December teaches us hope in darkness, then June teaches us humility in light. And between these two points, the winter of reflection and the summer of illumination—the Mason travels the symbolic path of life. May we, as individuals and as a Lodge, learn to stand rightly in both seasons: faithful in darkness, and humble in light. And may we ever continue to seek that greater illumination which Masonry promises but never fully completes in this life. For as long as we are Masons, brethren, we are always—and must always remain—seekers of light.

BROTHERS

Tidings from the East...

Brethren,

As we move into the summer months, I find myself reflecting on how quickly this year has progressed and how much has already been accomplished through the dedication and efforts of our members. It continues to be both an honor and a privilege to serve this lodge as Worshipful Master. May 19th and 20th, I had the opportunity to attend the Grand Lodge Annual Communication in Indianapolis. It was a wonderful experience filled with fellowship and the chance to reconnect with Brothers from across the state whom I had not seen in quite some time. The beauty and grandeur of the Scottish Rite Cathedral building are truly something to behold. The craftsmanship, architecture, and rich history of the cathedral serve as a reminder of the lasting legacy of our fraternity and the men who came before us. Attending Grand Lodge is always a valuable experience, and I returned home with a renewed appreciation for our fraternity and the work being accomplished throughout Indiana Masonry. May 30th, our lodge hosted the annual Larry Benner Golf Outing fundraiser. I am pleased to report that the event was a tremendous success. We were blessed with excellent weather, a strong turnout of golfers, and a day filled with fellowship, laughter, and friendly competition. Events such as this remind us that some of the strongest bonds in Masonry are often formed outside the lodge room.

I would like to extend a sincere thank you to Woodbury Golf Course for the use of their beautiful facility and for the many resources they provided to help make the outing possible. Their support and hospitality were greatly appreciated. I would also like to thank the many local businesses, organizations, and individuals who generously sponsored holes throughout the course. The continued support we receive from our community plays a vital role in the success of events such as these and is something we should never take for granted. Special recognition is due to Brothers Tim Pletcher, Duane Culp, and Trevor Pletcher for the countless hours spent planning, organizing, and coordinating the outing. Their hard work behind the scenes ensured that everything ran smoothly and contributed greatly to the event's success. I would also like to offer a heartfelt thank you to Trenton Pletcher for the outstanding meal he prepared and provided. The food was exceptional and received many compliments throughout the day. To everyone who played, volunteered, sponsored, donated, or otherwise contributed to the event, thank you for helping make this year's outing a great one.

We continue making progress on our downstairs lodge room renovation project. While much has already been accomplished, there is still important work remaining. Painting remains unfinished in areas and flooring still needs to be installed. In addition, we need to begin sourcing and finalizing the vinyl decals planned for the entrance area. I was informed recently that our Junior Warden may be called away for work obligations over the next couple of months, which will limit his availability to help complete the project. Because of this, I am asking for additional participation from any Brother who is willing to lend a hand. One of the great lessons Freemasonry teaches us is that meaningful accomplishments are seldom achieved alone. The strength of our lodge has always rested upon Brothers stepping forward when needed, sharing their talents, and working together toward a common goal. I have no doubt that we can continue that tradition as we complete this project and prepare our lodge for many years of future use.

We have now entered what many affectionately call "Table Lodge Season." For the next few months, business casual attire will be perfectly acceptable for our stated meetings which will be held in the social room. I encourage everyone to take advantage of the relaxed atmosphere and make an effort to join us. Summer schedules can become busy, but the fellowship found around our tables is one of the great joys of lodge life and one of the many reasons we gather as Brothers. Looking ahead, we have several exciting events on the horizon. Our Lodge Family Picnic is approaching quickly and will be a wonderful opportunity for Brothers, spouses, children, and friends to gather outside the lodge setting and enjoy fellowship together. Before long, we will also be preparing for the Blueberry Festival parking fundraiser, one of our most important fundraising efforts of the year. The success of these events depends greatly upon member participation, and I encourage each of you to consider how you can help. Whether by volunteering your time, lending your skills, or simply showing up to support the effort, your involvement makes a difference. As always, thank you for everything you do for our lodge. The future of our fraternity is built upon the commitment of Brothers who continue to show up, participate, and contribute to the work before us. I am proud of what we have accomplished together thus far and excited for what still lies ahead. I look forward to seeing each of you in lodge and at our upcoming events.

Fraternally,

Corey M. Johnson

Look well to the West...

"A Final Message from the West"

Brethren,

As I write what will be my final message from the West, I find myself reflecting on the incredible journey these past seven years have been. It is difficult to put into words what this Lodge, and each of you, have meant to me.

When I first knocked at the door of Freemasonry, I came seeking light and understanding. What I found was far greater than I ever expected. I found true brotherhood. I found men who challenged me to grow in character, to strengthen my integrity, and to strive always to be better than I was the day before. I found friendship, wisdom, encouragement, and a sense of purpose that has left a lasting mark on my life.

Serving this Lodge, and most recently serving you as Senior Warden, has been one of the greatest privileges of my life. To have been entrusted with leadership among men I hold in such high regard is an honor I will always cherish. The lessons I have learned within these walls, and the bonds forged here, are treasures I will carry with me always.

Though my path now leads me in a different direction, I leave with nothing but gratitude in my heart. Please know that my respect for this fraternity, and my affection for the brothers of this Lodge, remain as strong as ever. The working tools of Masonry have shaped me in ways that will remain evident for the rest of my days, and for that I will always be thankful.

My sincere hope for this Lodge is that it continues to flourish, that harmony always prevails within its walls, and that every man who enters seeking light may find it as abundantly as I did.

Thank you, my brothers, for your friendship, your trust, and your example. It has been one of the great honors of my life to labor among you.

May the Great Architect continue to watch over this Lodge and guide each of your steps.

Fraternally,
Travis J. ONeal
Senior Warden

Look well to the South...

Greetings, Brethren,

As we find ourselves entering the summer months, I hope everyone is enjoying the warmer weather and finding opportunities to spend time with family and friends. Summer often brings busy schedules, vacations, and outdoor activities, but I encourage each of you to continue making time for your lodge and your Brothers.

One of the great strengths of Freemasonry is the fellowship we share. While our ritual and teachings provide the foundation of our fraternity, it is the friendships we build and the bonds we strengthen that keep us coming back to lodge. Some of my favorite moments in Masonry occur before and after meetings, around the dinner table, during community events, or simply through conversations with Brothers whom I may not have seen in some time.

As Junior Warden, one of my responsibilities is the supervision of refreshment and fellowship, and I am pleased that we are entering our annual "Table Lodge Season." For the next few months, business casual attire will be acceptable at our stated meetings, creating a more relaxed atmosphere while still maintaining the dignity of our lodge. I encourage every Brother to take advantage of the opportunity to join us, enjoy a good meal, and spend time with your fellow Masons.

Our lodge calendar remains active throughout the summer with several opportunities to gather outside of regular meetings. The upcoming Lodge Family Picnic will provide an excellent chance for Brothers and their families to enjoy fellowship together in a casual setting. Before long, we will also be preparing for the Blueberry Festival parking fundraiser, an event that not only benefits our lodge but also allows us to be visible and engaged within our community.

I would also encourage each of you to reach out to a Brother you have not seen in lodge recently. A simple phone call, text message, or invitation to dinner before a meeting can go a long way toward helping a Brother feel connected. We often underestimate the impact of a small gesture of friendship.

Freemasonry was never intended to be a solitary journey. It is through fellowship, shared experiences, and mutual support that we continue to grow as men and as Masons. Whether you are a regular attendee or have been away for a while, know that there is always a seat waiting for you at our table and Brothers who are glad to see you.

I look forward to seeing everyone at our upcoming meetings and events. Until then, may you and your families enjoy a safe, healthy, and enjoyable summer season.

Fraternally,

Cody Pozil

Most Worshipful John A. Bridegroom Grand Master

Grand Master of Mason in Indiana

Dear Brother,

Opportunity is rarely convenient. It does not wait until you are ready. On the path of enlightenment, we seek to build ourselves into receptacles who may recognize wisdom when it is before us, and when it arrives, we must act. Many years ago, my dear friend shared this quote with me, attributed to William Hutchison Murray, and the last line he added from Johann Wolfgang von Goethe.

"Until one is committed, there is hesitancy, the chance to draw back, always ineffectiveness. Concerning all acts of initiative (and creation), there is one elementary truth, the ignorance of which kills countless ideas and splendid plans: that the moment one definitely commits oneself, then Providence moves too. All sorts of things occur to help one that would never otherwise have occurred. A whole stream of events issues from the decision, raising in one's favour all manner of unforeseen incidents and meetings and material assistance, which no man could have dreamt would have come his way. Whatever you can do, or dream you can, begin it. Boldness has genius, power, and magic in it!"

It is a powerful truth, and when you find yourself on the edge of something that seems too big to handle, or an endeavor that seems overwhelming in its scope, it reminds us that our only concern needs to be the next step. Every journey is accomplished one step at a time. We can change our stars, and we can become better than we ever imagined. We can build incredible things; we can be all that we admire and all that we desire. However, we must begin it. Freemasonry offers us the tools to take the next step, and then the step after that. You are a Master Mason, and you now have within your heart a secret weapon to break the chains of whatever is holding you back. We are now traveling men, on a journey to the East, where for our labors Plenty, Health and Peace lie in wait. My Brethren, look well to the East!

Sincerely and fraternally,
John A. Bridegroom, Grand Master, 2026-2027

Exploring Masonry

May & June 2026

John Staples

Views of a college Mason

May 2026

FREEMASONRY IS MAKING an impact on college and university campuses, especially in England and Wales where seventy-five academic lodges are currently active. In the US and Canada, there are more than twenty such lodges from Harvard and the University of Toronto to UCLA and the University of Washington. John Leonard, a 22-year old senior at The George Washington University in Washington, DC, was quoted in my book, Seeking Freemasonry: Academia and the Ancient Craft (Macoy, 2020):

"I became a Freemason because I wanted something more than the typical fraternity house experience. I appreciate the structure and formalized ritual of Masonry, and I've found the learning of degree lessons to be very interesting.

"My lodge, The Colonial, is an academic lodge with an informal relationship to the university. It has allowed me to meet fellow students and alumni. I've also met professors who have given lectures at the lodge, and that has made a great impression. It has made me eager to learn more from them.

"Masonry, I'm sure, will be a lifetime commitment for me. After graduation, I hope to hold an office in my lodge, to visit other lodges and, eventually, to join an appendant body such as the Scottish Rite."

Enhancing the message

June 2026

TO DISCOVER HOW IRRATIONAL some arguments can be, suggest updating the Masonic ritual. Even if the intent is to improve and enhance it, the response will surely include some or all of the following:

"We can't do that. Our ceremonies were given to us by King Solomon."

"Any change would confuse our members."

"It would create strife. We have to keep things the way they are."

Nonsense. Masonic ritual has been altered many times, the prime example being the addition of a third degree in the eighteenth century, after decades of having just two. More recently, the United Grand Lodge of England eliminated the ancient penalties; and in many lodges, we hear the "New York" or "Canadian" charges.

Institutions far older than Masonry have altered their ceremonies. In the late 1970s, for example, the Episcopal Church set aside the old Book of Common Prayer and adopted a new version, which some saw as a radical altering of Episcopal worship. Although traditionalists resisted the new edition, acceptance has gradually come about.

When Masons leave the room at the start of the lectures, or when candidates squirm in their seats, they are telling us that it's time to come to the point. Every Masonic leader should remember this -- the greatest speech in the history of the English language, the Gettysburg Address, was delivered in just over two minutes.

If you are not aware of or have not read Brother John's book "Seeking Freemasonry", I recommend you grab a copy.
