What if You are God

Lyrics by Cindy Olejar

Who thinks, who talks, who laughs, who cries
Who works, who plays, who shares, who defies
Who fears, who wants, who trusts, who lies

The I

And who is I

If you leave the I alone
Something else can be known

The I is just a thought
That comes and goes a lot
So I, you, really are not
As you still are before the I is brought

For the I this can be odd
What if You are God

Who loves, who hates, who agrees, who fights

Who wins, who loses, who respects, who slights
Who sleeps, who dreams, who harms, who delights

And who is I

If you leave the I alone
Something else can be known

The I is just a thought
That comes and goes a lot
So I, you really are not
As you still are before the I is brought

For the I this can be odd
What if You are God

Who hears, who tastes, who smells, who sees
Who runs, who walks, who whispers, who breathes

Who saves, who buys, who gives, who needs

Who is always aware of the I

For the I this can be odd

What if you are God

Who is always aware of the I

For the I this can be odd

What if you are God
