

Glastonbury Holocaust Remembrance Project Essay

Y.O.U.T.H

This Essay will encapsulate and express my ideas and viewpoint on what we can do to diminish discrimination, inequalities, violence, anti semitism and divisiveness in our community and in the world. Humans have made many horrendous and unforgivable things but we now have an obligation and duty to one realize our errors in our ways and two to learn what we do to learn from it to apply to the future. As someone who has been discriminated against because of skin color I personally feel that these ideals of hatred and resentment to others of difference to you starts young. This led me to the realization that we have to teach our youth to correct our errors. I have come up with a simple acronym to solve and learn from these issues. It is called Y.O.U.T.H

You being fully knowledgeable on discriminative ideals is something that is necessary for the growth of our people and for the growth of equality. More knowledge on the effects of these ideals and what they have on others can shift many viewpoints. This is why it is beneficial for our younger generations to have the idea of equality in their mind because if not it can lead to the same mistakes we made in the past.

Our ability to share our ideas with the world about equality and the injustices that come without it. Without great people, Like many of the holocaust survivors, we would have never gotten a true idea on what was truly experienced by the people having to hide and fight just for the chance of them coming out alive.

Unification of everyone. We have to show that unification of all people is a great thing that should be celebrated. Love and care for each other as well as teaching that to the younger generations will be a great step into the future.

Time. time is something that we dont lots of. With growing conflicts between people and countries as well as segregation and hate some of us still have for each other because of the past. Time is the most valuable thing we have so we can't waste it. Teaching children young that everyone is equal and should be treated with the same respect is something we have to do. If we want a world with less discrimination, the time we spend teaching is something that we have to ensure.

Honoring the people in the past that have fought for our equality for the ability to walk freely. People like this should be taught in schools at a young age. Learning about these influential figures can give our children an idea of how we should act towards anyone that is different to us.
