Course Description

Whether you do maintenance, service, or construction, confined spaces are everywhere. Understanding what makes confined spaces so dangerous and how to safely operate around or within them is key.

The ability to distinguish between a confined space and a permit-required confined space is critical. Our course teaches students the most common differences and ways to eliminate or control the hazards associated with both. First-hand experience will be used to educate and challenge the student's ability to identify and plan for work in various scenarios. Students will plan, assemble, and enter mock confined spaces.
