

THE X/O (Exits & Options) EP

The "X/O EP" is RHJ's second featured release as an independent artist. The X/O EP follows up RHJ's debut album "The Counsel Of Elders". The X/O EP is a masterful blend of Hip-Hop, Soul, and Modern Jazz. X/O begins with an RHJ original track titled "El Presidente" which RHJ references an iconic Hip-Hop bass riff from Eric B. and Rakim's tune "Don't Sweat The Technique". Next, RHJ's interpretation of the Herbie Hancock's song "I Thought It Was You" is a soul music masterpiece, which is a testament to RHJ's years performing and touring with neo-soul legends. Many radio personalities and promoters consider "Symphonette" (Track 3) to be a highlight track from the X/O EP it is "superfly-funky". "I Can't Tell You Why" (Track 4) is RHJ's exquisite interpretation of the classic song by The Eagles. The X/O finale is a hauntingly beautiful rendition of Kanye West's "Heartless". Amongst the awesome arrangements, the X/O EP showcases RHJ's brilliant and tasty guitar performance as some formidable talent accompanies him.
