

Hey, budding theologians of all ages, too much required reading?

Those big names in theology can be tough to pronounce and even harder to read! Bultmann, Strauss, and others just aren't all that easy to understand, and there just aren't any Cliff Notes or comic-book versions. Worse, they make for a rotten children's message. Do not fear, for the makers of Textus Berneticus have a new product line for Bernetneßschriften (BNS). Introducing:

Theology a la Dr. Seuss^{TIM}

Yes, we proudly combine the substance of the big names in theology, the brevity of the BNS monks, and the style of the school of Seuss, all his pennames, and protégés.

Dr. Seuss Channels the 19th Century Theologians:

- Green Eggs and Ham, or Schleiermacher's potluck for the community of like-minded individuals
- Horton Hears a Who, or Kierkegaard's pursuit of the creature who had already made the leap of faith
- Robert the Rose Horse, or the unauthorized biography of Nietzsche from the one he loved most
- The Grinch who Stole Christmas, or Nietzsche: my life and times as an übermensch
- The 500 Hats of Bartholomew Cubbins, or Albert Schweitzer and the myths of Jesus

Also, just in time...

Dr. Seuss Speaks to the 20th Century Issues of Church:

- Are You My Mother? Or Feminist theology as espoused by a chick (uh, young bird)
- Cat in the Hat, or feline evangelical style runs amok in a house of Lutheran substance
- Fox in Socks, or understanding different denominations and their dress codes
- Hop on Pop, or making church simple, easy, and accessible for all
- One Fish, Two Fish, Red Fish, Blue Fish, or church growth and cross-cultural outreach: adding members to the pondgregation
