REPURPOSED AUSTRALIAN SCALLOP SHELL ORNAMENTS,
RING/TRINKET DISHES, & HOME ACCENTS

Hello!

In this pack you'll find designs & info on my handmade scallop shell dish and ornaments offered for wholesale. Prices available upon request; simple email or touch base via my website.

Decor & more.

Made from repurposed Australian scallop shells, you can place them on a console, in a tray, or on top of stacked books, for a gorgeous home accent. Use them as a salt cellar at your dinner parties. Plop jewellery in them on your dresser or bedside table. Or even store rubber bands and paper clips in them on your desk. (They really make wonderful gifts.)

Feel free to reach out if you have any questions at all!

Cheers,

Kristen Cetrulo (& Cooper)

The idea.

After a little soirée with friends, I went to toss scallop shells in the bin and notice how each shell looked like a piece of art. The colours, textures, and perfect imperfections were too beautiful to turn into landfill. So, after a bunch of ideas (and a lot of trial and error), I decided on decoupageing them...and literally never stopped.

You'll often find me in my pyjamas painting shells early in the morning or until the wee hours of the night...and my son, Cooper, is never far away!

The process.

All shells are thoroughly cleaned, with a light sand on the edges. I first paint the insides with a couple coats of white. Then carefully adhere the selected printed designs using Mod Podge (a glue-like substance). A bit of gold or silver paint is added on the shell edges and, finally, a spray of glossy sealer. (Sounds way quicker—and easier—than it is, but you get the idea!)

Designs are fully licensed and/or created by me. And all materials used are non-toxic. Shells are byproducts, sustainably sourced from Australia.
