

Cryptids on Campus at Keystone College

Written by Steve Skierski

One real cryptid of Keystone is the white doe. Sighted by many including myself and many of my fellow campus safety officers between 2013 and 2017, she was a piebald deer covered in snow white fur. I always regarded seeing her as a certain rite of passage for new people at the College, right up there with talking to Scuba Steve. I don't know how she met her end, but I do know that a piebald fawn was around campus a few years after the last confirmed sighting. This little creature unfortunately met her end on the nearby highway.
