GUIDE TO HEALTH CARE SERVICES IN THE RICHMOND HIGHWAY COMMUNITY FOR LOW-INCOME, UNINSURED, OR UNDERINSURED RESIDENTS

Where can low-income, uninsured, or underinsured residents turn for health care? This guide can help residents, their families, and service providers find the best starting place. The guide covers the Richmond Highway Community in Fairfax County. See page iii for a map of the Route 1 Community.

The hotline at Fairfax County Community Services — 703-222-0880 — can also direct you to specific services for health care or other basic needs. Other Northern Virginia health care providers for low-income, uninsured, or underinsured residents are shown at the website: <https://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/health/sites/health/files/assets/documents/pdf/nova-safety-net-providers.pdf>. For the most recent information, call the clinics.

Charts for the clinics are listed alphabetically in this guide. Each chart gives the same type of information on each clinic. The questions below direct you to a clinic that can meet your needs.

Answer the three questions below to see which clinic you should start with.

1. Do I have adequate insurance to cover my needs?

- Yes. Call Neighborhood Health or a private practice.
- No. Call Simplicity Health. See below.
- I don't know. To make an appointment to check if you are eligible, call Neighborhood Health or the Fairfax County Health Department.

2. Is my income less than twice the federal poverty level? That level is about $25,000 for one person or $43,000 for a family of three.

- Yes. You can go to most clinics in this guide.
- No. Call Simplicity Health. See below.
- I don't know. To make an appointment to check if you are eligible, call Neighborhood Health or the Fairfax County Health Department.

3. What type of care do I need?

- Pre-natal
Call Fairfax County Health Department for qualification and referral to Inova Cares Clinics for Women.
- Family (pediatric, adolescent, or adult)
Call Neighborhood Health or Fairfax County Health Department.
- Adult
Call Neighborhood Health, Fairfax County Health Department, or Simplicity Health.
- Mental Health/Substance Abuse
Call Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board.
- Dental
Call Neighborhood Health or United Community for a referral to Northern Virginia Dental Clinic. The Fairfax County Health Department offers dental services for people under age 20 on Medicaid or income-eligible.

The South County Task Force for Human Services is a volunteer activist organization that seeks to improve the quality of life and promote social and racial equity in the Richmond Highway Community and surrounding magisterial districts of Fairfax County. It has advocated for affordable housing, health care, and other services since 1975. The Task Force is a nonsectarian, nonpartisan organization with a steering committee of elected individuals and selected organizations.

The Fairfax County Richmond Highway Community runs from the City of Alexandria to the Prince William County border through the Fairfax magisterial districts of Mount Vernon and Lee.

The corridor transverses the neighborhoods of Huntington, Mount Eagle, Belle Haven, Groveton, Bucknell, Hybla Valley, Woodley, Woodlawn, Mount Vernon, Fort Belvoir, Mason Neck, and Lorton.

INTRODUCTION

South County saw two big changes to health care for low-income uninsured and underinsured residents in 2019.

First, on January 1, about 400,000 adults in Virginia, about 30,000 of them in Fairfax County, became eligible for Medicaid Expansion, which was passed by the Virginia General Assembly in 2018. By July, 300,000 of those eligible had signed up for the program. Medicaid expansion provides coverage for adults with incomes up to 138 percent of the federal poverty level, which is $16,750 a year for a disabled person or able-bodied adult and $28,700 for a family of three. Providers in this guide, especially Neighborhood Health and Fairfax County, can help residents sign up for this benefit.

Second, as of July 1, Fairfax County Health care services for uninsured and underinsured residents were reorganized. In the Lee and Mt. Vernon Districts, Neighborhood Health, a non-profit federally qualified health center, has taken over many of the duties and facilities of the Fairfax County Community Health Care Network, which had provided primary care services to approximately 16,000 low-income county residents. The Merrifield and South County Center clinics became part of the Neighborhood Health system, which now operates 12 clinics throughout the county, including three in South County.

Fairfax County provides financial support to Neighborhood Health to build capacity, increase access to integrated primary care, and expand the safety net for delivery of family health care services.

Neighborhood Health offers:

- Affordable, primary care services, including medical, dental, and behavioral health services. These services are available for families, including children.
- Referrals to partnerships with local hospitals and other community providers for specialty care.
- Free translation services and staff who speak languages other than English.

This updated guide reflects the changes in Fairfax County and Neighborhood Health services. Other providers in this guide reviewed and updated their listings.

We received many compliments on the usefulness of the first (2018) edition of the guide from county social service providers, nonprofits, and faith communities that run food pantries and other services.

This guide is available free at Route 1 Community health clinics, social service nonprofits, the Gerry Hyland South County Center, the Gartlan Center and many of the area churches belonging to Ventures in Community. An electronic version is distributed with the South County Task Force Newsletter. It is also posted on the websites of several nonprofits including United Community and Ventures in Community.
