

IN RECOVERY

So, John's shoulder rehab is going . . . well, to be honest, it's up and down. This week he was pleased to have recovered somewhat. But his shoulder is still not strong and he suffers from limitations in arm movement. Jenny is also very slowly recovering from the rib injury she sustained in our latest car accident. You could say we are both "in recovery." But there are other ways many of us are in recovery. Some suffer from substance abuse. Some are grieving. Some are injured. All of us in some sense are in recovery from our most basic impairment - sin!

Jenny and her professor friends celebrated another successful ministry/school year by having a tea party at a lovely shop near the UIndy campus. Women from several Indiana campuses came together to rejoice in their mutual fellowship in the gospel and in God's goodness to their families, to their students and to their colleagues. And then this week we hosted a prayer breakfast for Indianapolis faculty, mostly men, led by one of the professors. Our hope is to make this a regular part of our ministry program because Christian growth is more meaningful in community.

Still, many of our professor friends, despite their learning and maturity are conflicted, confused and skeptical about God and the gospel.

Dr. W, a biology professor, while open to dialogue, isn't convinced he needs God's grace. He and John have agreed that they will continue their dialogue after he reads Tim Keller's Reason for God over the summer break. Professor G., who teaches philosophy, is sure there are no definitive answers to life's questions but confesses that he knows that we live in a moral universe and that most of us are on the wrong side of the law.

For those who know Christ, our recovery from sin has begun and is assured of completion (Phil. 1:6).

But many like Dr. W, and Professor G., have yet to discover God's goodness and grace. Please join us in asking God to open their eyes and bring them to faith. We're grateful for the part you have in reaching faculty and students here in the US and around the world.

Prayer requests:

- We have arranged to purchase a new car to replace one of the ones we've lost. We still hope to obtain a second one at some point later in the summer or early fall. Please ask the Lord to provide.
- Please pray for our recovery from our injuries. The going is slow but steady.
- We travel to Orlando in early June to serve as coaches for our younger staff in their summer classes. Jenny will coach Bible Study Methods and John Biblical Interpretation and Communication. Ask the Lord to keep us safe as we travel and effective as we lead and guide these wonderful campus missionaries.
