Have you ever had to defend your faith? As Christians, we're confronted with it all the time. God's Not Dead is exactly that, only Josh puts God on trial in his University philosophy class due to his professor's atheistic belief and explicit denial of Jesus Christ and his classmates are the jury. Do you need some tools and help in defending what you believe in? Do you think that you can't stand up to the pressure the world and the devil put on you to stand up for your believe in Jesus Christ? Those who are involved in Josh's life and his professor's life are also powerfully impacted and have to make a decision of what they truly believe in. Its power and a must see!
