The loss of vision by money, fortune and fame drag the life of the up and coming heir to the mega church empire to the reality of its early beginnings. Having to have 'his wings clipped', Ethan, played by Michael W. Smith, is forced to 'do time' at the sister church where his father had his beginnings as a pastor. In the nitty gritty of having to get his hands dirty in the low income impoverished neighborhood however changed this young man's life forever. The Second Chance is a good watch and brings us again to the reality of what church is.
